CHIANG KAI-SHEK REFUTES RUMOUR OF PEACE TALKS

Hankow, Yesterday.

"Rumours of Sino-Japanese peace conversations are only another Japanese attempt to undermine the friendship between China and friendly Powers, especially Soviet Russia."

"China's determination to continue their war of resistance and the co-operation of friendly Powers will never be affected by such malicious propaganda," declared Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in an exclusive interview with Reuter, who asked regarding rumours in the European press of mediation, on the hostilities.

GENERAL STRIKE THREAT IN PARIS

PARIS YESTERDAY.
THE WORKERS' SYNDICATE OF PARIS HELD A LARGE DEMONSTRATION IN WAGRAM HALL LAST NIGHT FOR THE MAINTENANCE OF 40-HOUR WEEK.

Strong units of police, reinforced by Mobile Guards and Republican Guards were standing by in order to prevent an interference. The Hall was full and large crowds, who could not gain admission, remained outside in the street where speaking choruses continued to shout "General Strike! General Strike!"

In the meeting hall, leaders of the Parisian Trade Union organisations used the sharpest of words in demanding that the 40-hour Week should be observed.

M. Daladier was pronounced the "Protector of capitalists and heavy industries" and the demonstrators hissed several times on his name being mentioned.

A resolution was carried in which the Premier's attitude was strongly criticised and in which it was declared that no workman would work more than a 40-hour a week as long as there were still unemployed in France.—Trans-Ocean.

TEHAN SAVAGELY BOMBED

Nanchang, Yesterday.
Military despatches report the terrible bombing of Tehan by Japanese planes to-day. Scores of missiles were dropped, causing heavy casualties and extensive property losses.

On the centre column of the Nanchang-Kiukuang railway, severe fighting raged throughout this morning and afternoon with both sides suffering huge losses.

In the vicinity of Shaho, Japanese batteries kept pounding away at the Chinese defence works at Mupangshan.—Central News.

BABY CHICKS REACH H.K. BY CLIPPER

Baby chicks by air.
Hong Kong is evidently out to demonstrate its penchant for the unique in some fashion or other. At all events, the Clipper which arrived in the Colony from Alameda and Manila yesterday brought 600 Ithode Island Red chicks, consigned to Mr. Emil Landau, of Shouson-Hill.

These are believed to be the first chicks ever carried as passengers by the Clippers.

NEW PROBLEMS FOR OLD

London, Yesterday.
The "Manchester Guardian", after commenting on the recent delay of the Japanese advance to Hankow, says: "The Japanese position is now somewhat stronger by reason of the Chinese inability to control the Yangtze. Apparently they are incapable of organising an effective diversion elsewhere."

"If Hankow falls, which appears to be certain, it will not mean the end of the war, but it is foolish to pretend that it will not greatly change its character. The fall of Hankow will cause new problems, both for the Chinese and the Japanese as well."—Reuter.

CAPT. EYSTON ACHIEVES 345.49 M.P.H.

Bonneville Salt Flats, Yesterday.

Capt. Eyston to-day drove his Thunderbolt to a new world land speed record averaging 345.49 miles per hour, and covering the measured mile in 10.42 seconds. On his northward run, he averaged 347.49 miles per hour, his time being 10.36 seconds and in the southward run, 346.51 and 10.48 seconds.

The previous mile record was 311.42 miles per hour. The world speed record, previously 312.00 m.p.h. was over a kilometre. — Reuter.

20 DEAD IN WARSHIP THAT FAILED TO SLIP THE NET

Gibraltar, Yesterday.
Following a night of unrest, in which the residents watched gun flashes and searchlights from the sea and listened to incessant gunfire, the "Jose Luis Diaz," the Republican destroyer which left France recently after undergoing repair for the past eight months, limped into the harbour badly damaged.

It was learned that there were 20 dead aboard and 14 wounded have been taken to the hospital.

The British military mounted guard in the destroyer's vicinity, while three Insurgent warships are keeping watch outside the harbour. — Reuter.

OIL BOYCOTT
New York, Yesterday.
"Mexico only disposed of 365,000 barrels of oil between April 4 and August 10, according to confidential tabulation," quotes the "Herald Tribune" newspaper, which claims that the world-wide embargo, organised after the oil lands had been expropriated, has proved "most successful." — Reuter.

Two Minds With But A Protesting Thought

Washington, Yesterday.
The British Ambassador's protest against the censoring of Reuter despatches is widely commented on by the American press and is regarded as being parallel to the United States protest to Shanghai on August 28, which the Japanese have hitherto ignored.

Mr. Cordell Hull's note in protest against the attack on the C.N.A.C. airliner is seen as a further proof that, whilst London and Washington retain full independence of action, protests from both should leave Japan with no doubt as to their intention to defend their rights in China. — Reuter.

SIR JOHN REPEATS

Nothing To Add To Mr. Chamberlain

REJECTS VIEW THAT WAR IS INEVITABLE

London, Yesterday.

A reaffirmation of British policy regarding Czechoslovakia, as outlined in Mr. Chamberlain's declaration in the Commons on March 24, an appeal for support for Lord Runciman in his mission of conciliation and a plea for world peace, were the principal points in the anxiously awaited speech by Sir John Simon at Lanark this afternoon.

MR. WINSTON CHURCHILL

...issues a word of warning.

Climax Cannot Long Be Delayed

Says Winston Churchill

London, Yesterday.
Mr. Winston Churchill, speaking at Theydon Bois, Essex, declared: "The whole state of Europe and the world is moving steadily towards a climax which cannot long be delayed.

War is certainly not inevitable but the danger to peace will not be removed until the vast German armies which have been called from their homes into the ranks, have been dispersed.

"It seems to me—and I must tell you plainly—that these Government forces have not been placed on a war footing without the intention of reaching a conclusion within the most limited space of time.

"Fabricated stories which are spread of Marxist plots in Czechoslovakia and the issue of orders to the Sudeten Germans to arm and defend themselves, are disquieting signs similar to those preceding Australia."

EXTRAORDINARY MAN
Stating that it was known that the German people did not wish for war, above all for a war with the British Empire, Mr. Churchill said that anxieties and hopes were therefore centred upon "that extraordinary man at the summit of Germany." — Reuter.

proved "most successful." — Reuter.

SIR JOHN SIMON

...reiterates the Chamberlain dictum on Czechoslovakia.

BODIES OF CNAC VICTIMS COMING TO H.K.

ARRANGEMENTS HAVE BEEN MADE TO BRING THE BODIES OF VICTIMS OF THE CNAC AIR-LINER OUTRAGE TO HONG KONG, THE "SUNDAY HERALD" UNDERSTANDS.

According to plans devised yesterday, the bodies will arrive in the Colony, via Macao, in the course of to-day or early tomorrow morning.

The wreck of the "Kweilin" has now been raised sufficiently to enable the cabin to be entered and as a result the total of bodies recovered is now understood to be twelve, with only two still missing.

Reliable reports state that everyone of the victims bore bullet wounds.

GERMAN BORDER SHOOTING

Prague, Yesterday.
A German frontier guard on the Czech border fatally shot a man who is alleged to be a Czech smuggler attempting to cross into German territory. — Reuter.

In accordance with the rules of the Chronometric Societies of Switzerland and France, "The title of Chronometer is permitted only if it is a watch of the finest quality and so precisely adjusted in all positions and extremes of temperature that it will pass a 14 days' continuous Observatory test."

Sir John Simon added that it was the duty of everybody concerned with world peace, to do nothing to imperil a satisfactory solution.

POSITIVE PEACE POLICY

Earlier, Sir John, referring to

Mr. Chamberlain, said that he was fully restored to health after his recent indisposition.

Defining the Government's general policy in the realm of foreign affairs, Sir John described it as "a positive policy of peace."

Last month he'd have edged away from her —

But she uses Odo-ro-no now!

Men never forgive a girl who's careless about underarm perspiration. Sensible women realize this, and make the use of Odo-ro-no as regular and natural a part of their toilet routine as cleaning their teeth.

Odo-ro-no guards freshness and saves clothes.

It is a safe, dependable preparation.

There are 2 kinds:
1. INSTANT (or "clear") Odo-ro-no gives protection for two or three days.
2. REGULAR (or "red") Odo-ro-no—one application lasts a week.

ODO-RO-NO

Why There Are Freak FASHIONS

YOU have probably seen and read a good deal about the new season's "freak fashions." Don't be alarmed at all the "blush" concerning atavist styles, and think that there will be no becoming or sensible clothes for you to wear this winter. Our Fashion Artist, who has just returned from Paris, tells you here of the two worlds of dress—the one "to clothe," the other "to astonish."

The second of these, which exists often to create and perpetuate show and extravagance, has for this very reason a significance which must not be underestimated, but, as you will read in this article, it is condemned by many of the best of the designers as by all intelligent and thinking people.

MAUD DAWSON.

Fashion reflects the age we live in. It is only when we stand aside now and again that we can observe where we are tending. Listen to the words of one famous Paris dressmaker, Mlle. Gabrielle Chanel: ". . . it should not be forgotten that the crazy eccentricity to which too much has been sacrificed in past years, will, if unchecked, lead to ruin . . ." She has, therefore, planned her designs "to clothe rather than to astonish." And who can disagree with so wise and sensible an attitude?

Reviewing the collections now than ever before. The fullness is showing in Paris, we may easily achieve sometimes from the clivage cutting or from close gathering at waist or hips; sometimes the cut is in the Victorian style, fuller at the back, in duchesse satin, brocade or moire, with closely fitting buttoned jacket hav-

In the latter category we may include the pannier Goya period dresses, waist-waisted, and expressed in sumptuous fabrics by Balenciaga; Schiaparelli's minature trilby and top hats worn well forward and secured with ribbon bands at the back of the head, bracelets and earrings of jingling bells; top hats, bicycles, luggage locks, door hinges, upholsterer's cords used as models for buttons; concertina hats and muffs.

Rochas' "crazy-paving" jacket of astrakhan applied on black cloth; the Victorian button boots shown by Paquin and Schiaparelli, who used them extensively for evening wear in all the pastel shades, and, above all, the wealth of lavish and ornate materials, hand-woven lame brocades, embroideries, furs and feathers, all employed with a lavishness reminiscent of the days when every country had its royal court.

And now, what can we wear? Pleats at all times of day and evening, on any sort of garment, in every material.

Now, too, are enjoying a revival of popularity. Made of chenille, dotted tulle or lace, they give a feminine finish to the classic tailor-made which is a much favoured style.

Daytime frocks are, in the main, neat and trim, the plain, narrow sleeves being preponderant, although the movement towards elaboration in sleeve treatment is developing. Shoulders are squared, often padded. Jacques Heim shows a new silhouette which he has named "Schweppes" because it follows the line of the famous bottle. He does not make too marked a distinction between the day and evening silhouette.

In the Helm Jeune Fille collection is shown a trim little model carried out alternatively in green wool for day time and lame embroidered in gold and silver for evening.

Coats are mainly redingote style with flared skirt; the straight coats are of lengths varying from wrist to finger-tip to three-quarter and seven-eighth length. Skirts are slightly longer than last season and are often high-waisted, continuing the popular corset line.

Evening dresses, as before, are divided between the closely fitting sheath and the picture frocks, which are of an amplitude greater ing flared basques at the back. The underskirts are as full as the frocks they accompany, and are carried out in ruched taffeta, crinoline, or starched "broderie anglaise." Mainbocher shows several trained evening dresses.

Materials used include heavy Scotch tweeds, broadcloths, jerseys, tartans, striped and checked woollens and velvet for day. For evening, velvet, hand-woven brocaded lame, duchess satin, faille moire, silk jersey, wool, gros tulle, spotted net, chiffon, and striped satin and faille.

Colours are black, red, Heim's currant red, parma violet, all the fuchsia tones, aubergine, bordaux and burgundy, candy pink, cherry, cyclamen, terracotta, green, grey and all tones of blue. Schiaparelli shows a marked penchant for navy blue, which is also favoured by Chanel.

Quilting is much used by itself or as a trimming.

(Right) — Stripes are not only smart, they are becoming to most of you—particularly floral stripes if cut in the right way. This charming frock shows you how.

COOK'S FRIEND

TOMATOES are cheaper. Moreover, they are a valuable tonic vegetable, ranking only second to citrus fruits and strawberries in Vitamin C content.

There are so many ways of dealing with these delicious vegetables that hardly know where to start, but there is no morning pick-me-up to beat a Tomato Juice Cocktail, and here it is:

Mix together one tablespoonful of tomato juice, one tablespoonful of mild vinegar, two tablespoonsfuls of castor sugar, a tiny bit of bay leaf, one teaspoonful of grated or minced onion, one tablespoonful of lemon juice and one crushed celery stick.

Let them stand for a quarter of an hour, strain through a fine cloth, chill and serve.

If your morning doldrums don't give way to a large wineglass of this, it's time to see the doctor.

The tomato is an excellent friend, too, to the cook, tickling her brain for new hors-d'oeuvres.

Choose small firm tomatoes, scoop out, chill and stuff.

For stuffing you can use a wide variety of good things, such as—Cooked rice mixed with chopped cooked chicken's liver, bound with mayonnaise sauce.

Cooked peas, rice and mayonnaise sauce.

Sweet corn mixed with whipped cream and seasoned with salt and pepper.

Mixed vegetable salad bound with mayonnaise sauce or French dressing.

Lobster or crab salad or pinwheels.

Shrimps and rice bound with mayonnaise.

Cooked white fish with mayonnaise sauce.

In fact, the list is only limited by your larder and your imagination.

Indeed, stuffed tomatoes make an excellent savoury or supper dish, served on slices of buttered toast.

For fillings for these, tunny fish mixed with the pulp of the tomato and seasoned with chopped herbs or yolks of hard-boiled eggs mixed with mayonnaise and garnished with chopped parsley or strips of cheese, tongue, apples and celery bound with mayonnaise, are all good.

Why not bottle your own tomato sauce?

Slice up four pounds of tomatoes, add two medium-sized onions, add 1lb. brown sugar, 1oz. allspice, 2oz. peppercorns, 1oz. salt, 1oz. cloves, half a teaspoonful of cayenne pepper. Cover with a pint of good vinegar, and boil gently for two hours. Pass through a fine sieve, and, when quite cold, bottle and cork tightly.

And, before I leave you, here's the recipe for Tomato Jelly, a grand appetizer with cold meat, or chopped up as a decoration for a vegetable salad.

Cook your tomatoes, cut in quarters, skin and all, with a clove, a few tarragon leaves, very small teaspoonfuls of chopped onion, salt, pepper and a little sugar. Add no liquid at all. When the tomatoes are tender, press them through a muslin and to every pint of the juice add half an ounce of melted gelatine. Keep on stirring until tomato juice and gelatine begin to cool, then pour into a china mould and let it set on ice.

BLACK COAT with clever diagonal trimming of fox and stiffened violet velvet and blouse with unusual sleeves of purple, blue, green and cherry hued with lame are from Marcel Rochas. Frivolous plumed hat trimmed ostrich feather hills from Paquin, and the muff, which usefully closes concertina-wise on occasion, is shown by both Worth and Helme.

TRY THIS!

EVER tried marrow with eggs? There are many ways of utilising the marrow, but this is something a little different that you will like.

Cut a young green marrow in thin slices, removing the seeds, and let these slices lie for a little while sprinkled with salt and pepper and a little onion juice. Then dry them in boiling olive oil, in a shallow fireproof dish. When done, pour over them three beaten eggs seasoned with salt, chopped parsley, chives, chervil and tarragon, and when the eggs have set, serve at once.

In Search Of Humour: By Montagu Slater

PLAYWRIGHT O'CASEY gets a joke from patron.

WHAT DOES THE X-RAY SHOW?

Tooth decay sometimes works under cover. The X-ray frequently discloses teeth badly infected below the gum line, which sap strength and even lead to serious diseases.

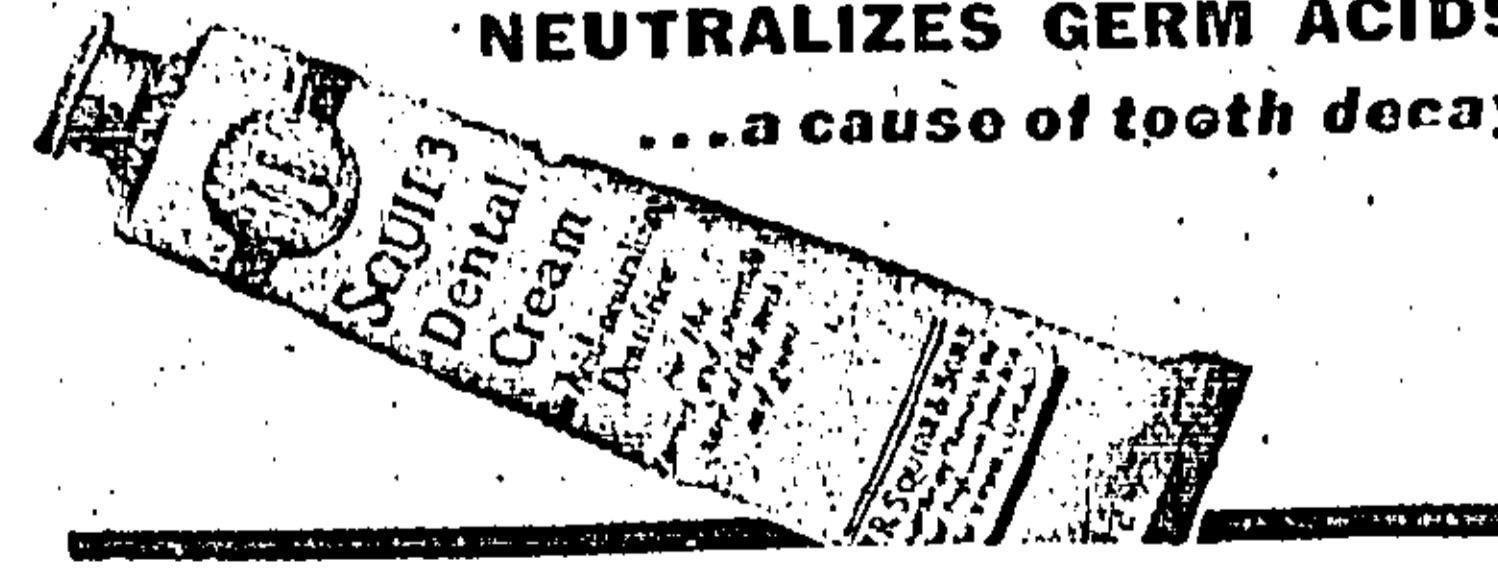

You must fight acid every time you brush your teeth! Germ Acids, forming from fermenting food particles, are the principal cause of tooth decay. You can fight them scientifically by brushing your teeth at least twice daily with Squibb Dental Cream. It is antacid and neutralizes Germ Acids.

Squibb Dental Cream contains nothing to scratch enamel or irritate gums...it protects and purifies as it cleans. And it costs no more than ordinary dentifrices.

I am not an Irishman, though when I go to Ireland they tell me I have an Irish name. And once one Irish politician accused me of being in the pay of another Irish politician, I put that in as a claim to having tried, as you might say, to get the idea.

What is humour? The great Yaffle, in the first article of this series, answered with that philosophical profundity only humorists can compass. Only humorists attempt definitions. The rest of us have to be content with examples. Thus, if I am asked, "What is a sense of humour?"—that quality the English demand in a man or damn him—I should reply with examples drawn from the life of the Duke of Wellington, who, when he read his old dispatches said, "Damned good! How did I manage to do it?" And when he inspected his army—"I don't know what effect they will have on the enemy, but, by God, they frighten me!"

The sense of humour has evidently something to do with the ability to delude oneself and most other people at the same time. I believe somebody once called it a sense of the dramatic—the power to see ourselves as others see us. Whatever it is, the Iron Duke had it. And the Iron Duke was an Irishman. He was the kind of Irishman G. B. S. wrote about. You remember?

"When I see the Irishman standing clear-headed, sane, hardly callous to the boyish sentimentalities, susceptibilities, and credulities that make the Englishman the dupe of every charlatan and the idolater of every numskull, I perceive that Ireland is the only spot on earth which still produces the ideal Englishman of history."

And, of course, this game of making Wellington a typical Irishman in Shaw's, too. It is the build-up to the classical contrast between "typical Englishman" and Nelson, who said, "Kiss me, wrong. Lyning and poetry are Hardy," and Irish Wellington, who arts, and they require the most careful study, the most disinterested devotion.

Shaw calls Wellington "an accomplished comedian in the art of anti-climax." He claims that the man by his rich rhythmic utterance, and in neither case will as the humour of Ireland.

"The Englishman," says Shaw, "is always at the mercy of his imagination, having no sense of view will generally be shared, I think, by Englishwomen, but never by Englishmen. It is another of the means whereby our Irish friends and our wives make pomposities as they are."

Now that is true. To read Mr. Yeats's mystical elucidations—whether on Madame Blavatsky's Cuckoo Clock or on The Secret Rose—is certainly to find that he has one eye on things as they are, though Lord knows where the other eye gets to. Just where an Englishman would really get going on Madame Blavatsky, Yeats cracks a joke—but that is to show he is a true believer. It is only when you have no doubts that the joke comes.

So away with Shaw's joke about the hard-headed Celt. Who brought the Celtic twilight back?

The cruel truth is that the Irish humour is not so dry. Our neighbours are just as good mixers of tragedy and comedy as the English—or even as the Scots at their most Baroque.

How else do Sean O'Casey—and his interpreters, Arthur Sinclair, Sara Allgood, Maire O'Neill—get their effects but by getting the joke out of the pathos? "The whole world," says O'Casey's broken-drunkard, "the whole world is in a state of chassis."

The Irishman, pace Shaw, is sentimental in his fun. It is also true that he is funny in his sentiment. And again, pace Shaw, when he's "a broth of a boy" it is not always just a pose for diddling the English. Why did the "Playboy of the Western World" cause a riot when first presented, unless because it told some of the truth?

But the Irish get back at us still. I imagine the type story of the relation of the Irishman and the Englishman is that of the amiable English bishop who innocently remarked to the not quite so amiable Irish dean: "There are some things in Gulliver that I do not quite believe."

It might be said—I think it will be—that all these stories of "the Englishmen taken in" are, for the Irish, compensation, and, for the English, propaganda, meant to cover the real facts that it was the Irish who were taken in, and shamefully taken over for 700 years. But there is still more to it.

The Englishman standing beside the Irishman feels uncomfortable. Against the other's tautness, his own easy-going ways begin to seem blundering. Against the other's sharp wit his own carefully preserved delusions begin to feel very silly.

That is one of the contributions of the Irish nation to mankind. Let it be written: "They made the conqueror feel silly."

This is not something inherent in relation of conqueror and conquered. The school class has to work very cleverly before the schoolmaster begins to feel a pimpmus idiot. Here a guerrilla war has been going on through the centuries.

We find it in Swift's smoothness: "A Modest Proposal for preventing the Children of the Poor from being a Burden to their Parents or Country and for making them beneficial to the Public." The proposal, of course, was to eat them.

Irish humour has always shown a tendency to smooth irony that Robey or a Harry Lauder, with a kept the Englishman writhing, humour as relaxing as the Irish climate, and smooth as Anglo-Irish speech, a Wellington with very often mean. For instance, we cut his boots.

I spread the story about Sheridan that he was arrested for debt after he was laid out as a corpse. It is all very well for the man to make fools of us. He can't pay his bills. Yaffe!

By the same token you will generally find Irishmen busy keeping their weapons bright. Here is Oscar Wilde on lying:

"People have a careless way of talking about 'a born liar,' just as they talk about 'a born poet.' But, in both cases, they are Nelson, who said, 'Kiss me, wrong. Lyning and poetry are Hardy,' and Irish Wellington, who arts, and they require the most would have said, 'Sir, don't be a damned fool.'

Shaw calls Wellington "an accomplished comedian in the art of anti-climax." He claims that the man by his rich rhythmic utterance, and in neither case will as the humour of Ireland.

practice must precede perfection."

STRONG ANTI-BRITISH FEELING IN JAPAN

Observer Analyses Cause And Effect

Obstacle To Japanese Aims At Expansion

London, Yesterday. The attitude of the Japanese towards Britain is dealt with in a report by the "Times" correspondent in Tokyo, who comes to the conclusion that there are anti-British elements in the Japanese Army, in the political Parties, every branch of Civil Service and amongst the business men. It is impossible to determine the numbers, but in general, it can be said that most people under 45 years of age in various walks of public life are inimical to the British people, the reasons being international trade competition and political rivalry in the Far East.

The Japanese are hostile to Britain also on personal and domestic political grounds.

The paper goes on to describe the political views of the young Japanese who are not seldom, are opposed to the attitude of the "older ones." In this connection the young Japanese officers are stated to be against Britain because they regard her as an obstacle to Japanese expansion in China.

LARGE CIRCLES

This report, which is the subject of the leading article in the "Times," then refers to Japanese press comment on Great Britain and points out that anti-British articles in the Japanese papers are not dictated, but reflect the feelings of large circles in the country.

Britain, the article continues, is the Japanese rival throughout the world and the Japanese consider this to be the case, particularly in the Far East, so that there are numerous Japanese who are doing their best to eradicate British influence and interests in China.

WARNINGS FUTILE

Many of the most capable Japanese had, indeed, pointed out that dangers such an attitude could bring in their train, but in Japanese military circles, these warnings had but little weight, as it was urged the exponents of moderation must needs proceed with caution and could, therefore, attain only smaller goals.

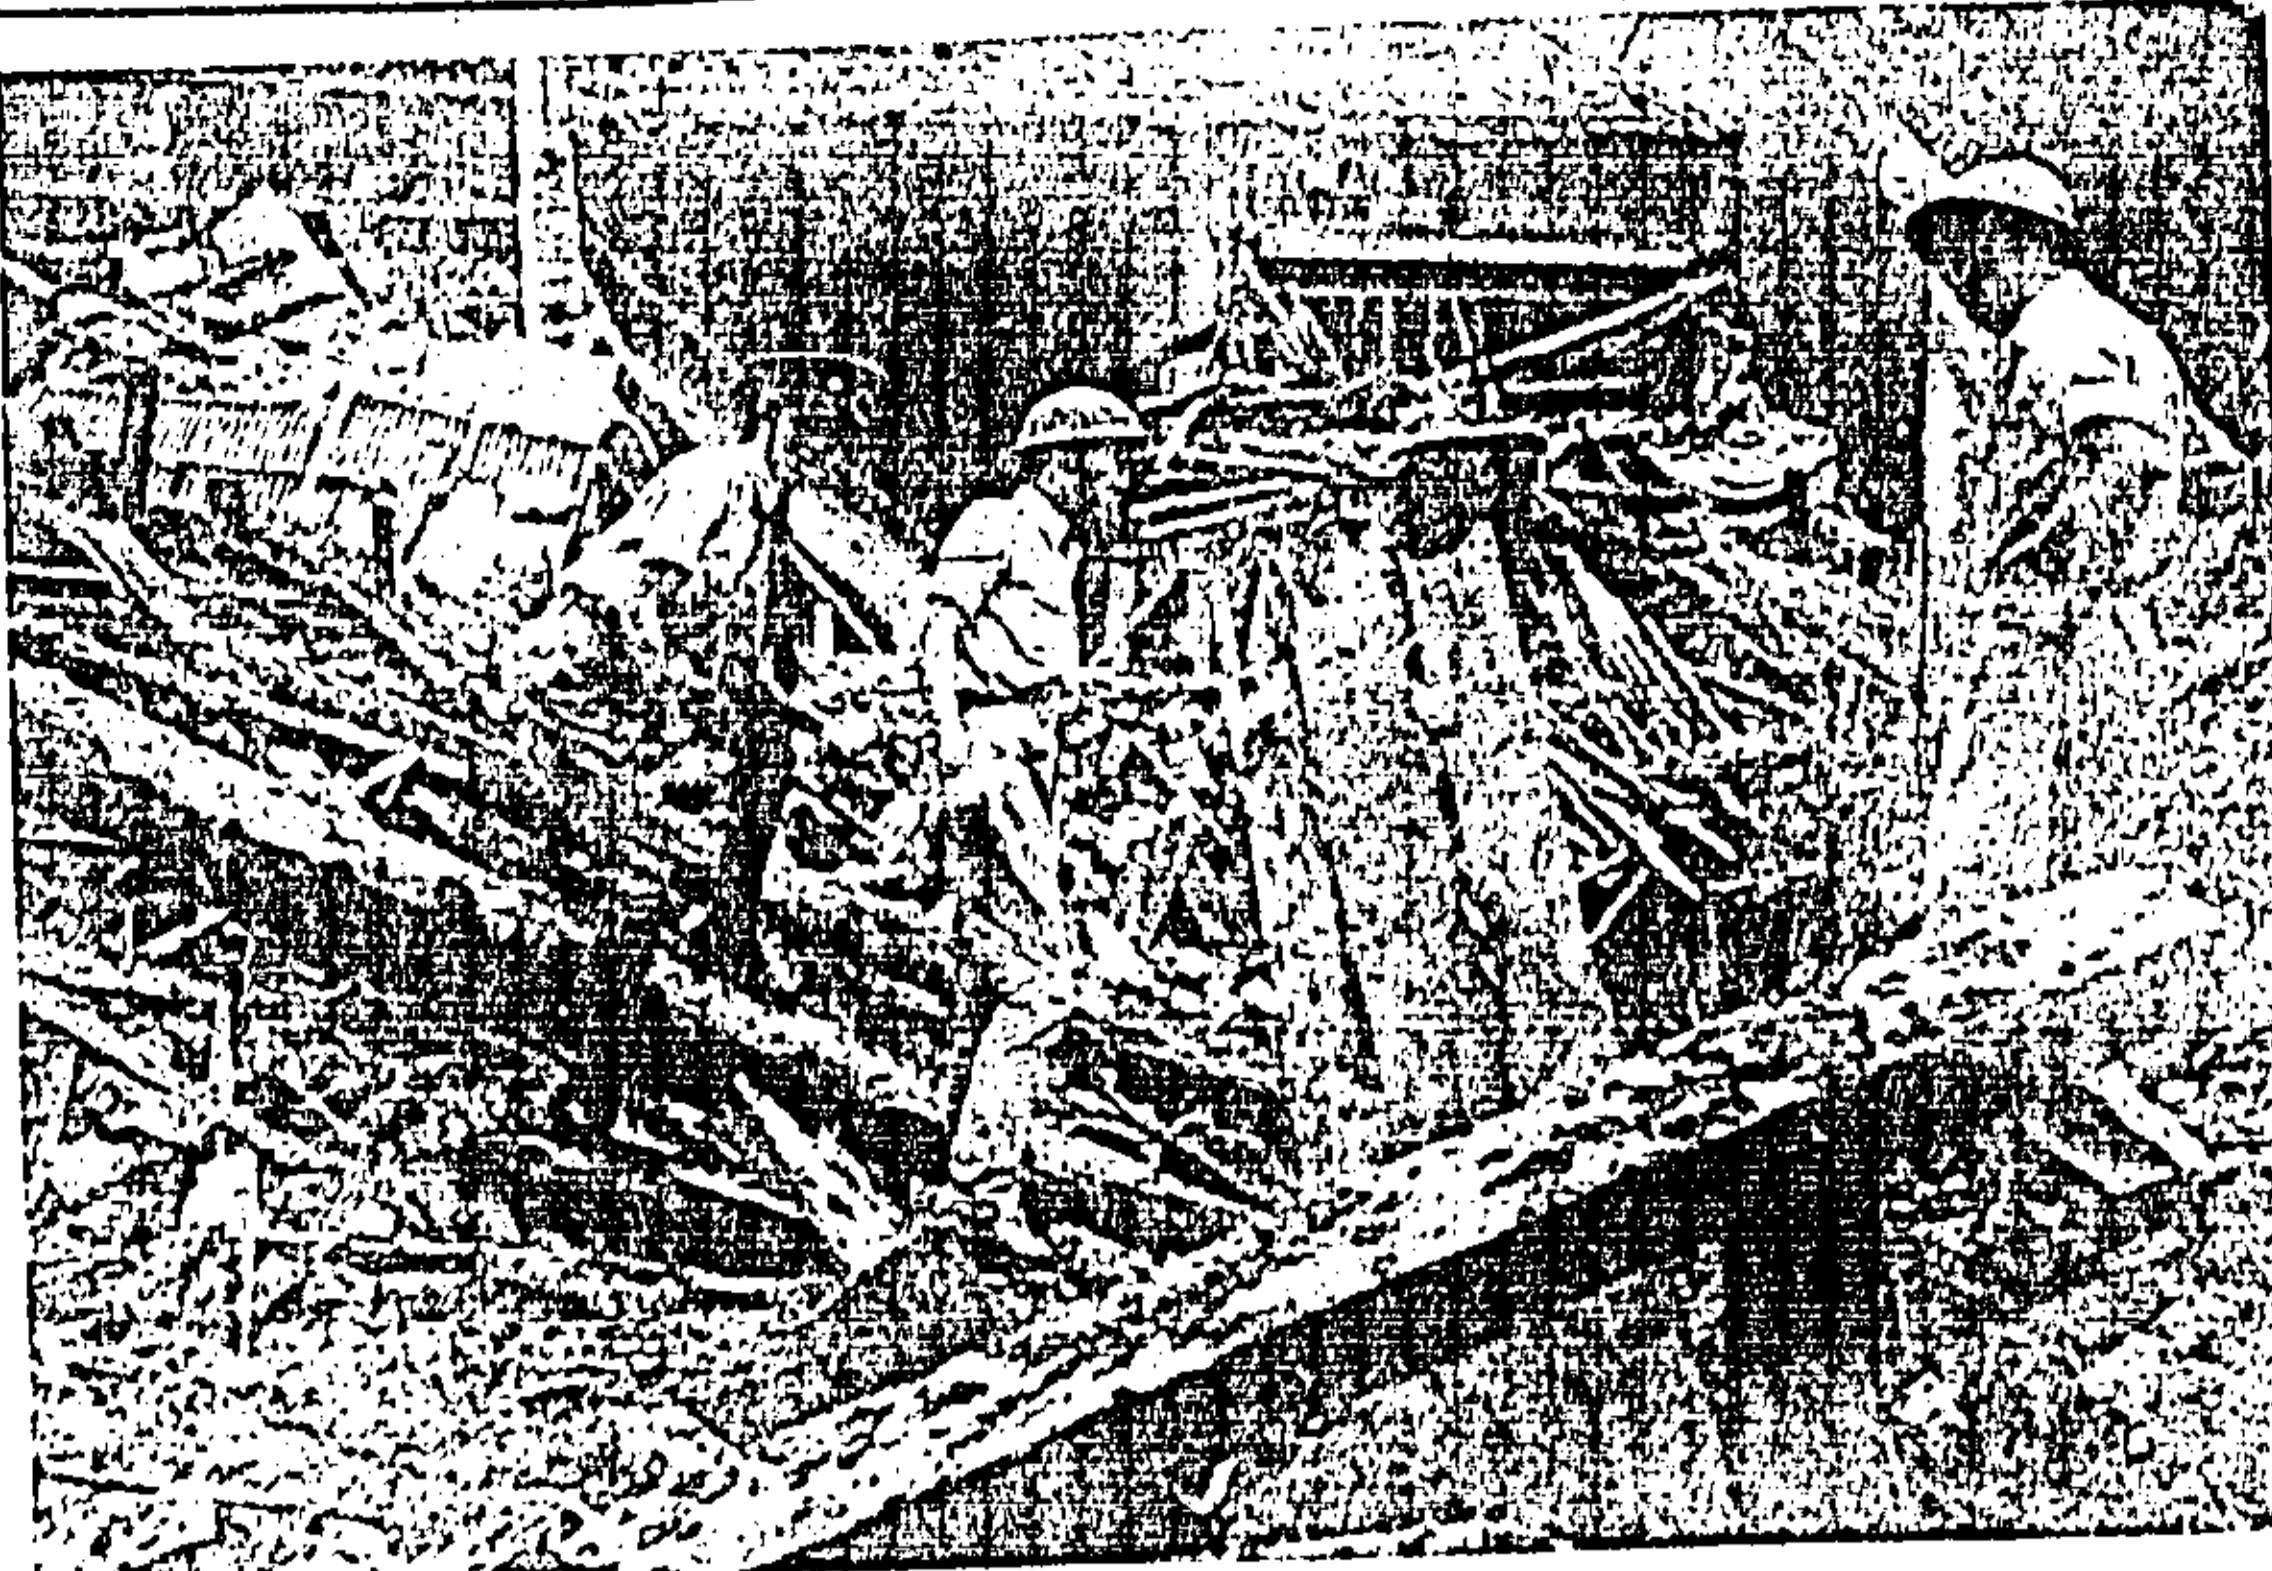

The paper then refers to the Anglo-Japanese conversations—which are not being continued at present—and to the war situation in China pointing out that Foreign Powers' influence in China could certainly not be brought to bear in favour of Japan while there were Japanese officers in China who could see an inimical attitude towards Japan in the viewpoint Kai-shek. —Trans-Ocean.

LINDBERGH ON WAY HOME

Moscow, Yesterday.

The well-known American aviator, Colonel Charles Lindbergh, accompanied by his wife, landed on Friday at 6.50 p.m., Moscow Time, on the flying ground at Rostow, on the River Don, to inspect the airport and the School for Civil Pilots at Bataisk, in the neighbourhood.

On Sunday, Colonel Lindbergh and his wife will fly from Rostow on the Don, via Charkov, Kiev and Odessa to Bucharest, and then to England.—Trans-Ocean.

ANOTHER WARSAW WHOPPER?

Warsaw, Yesterday.

The three Polish soldiers in the German Army during the World War who were made prisoners-of-war by the Russians, returned last night to their homes in Krotoszyn, Poland.

Until recently they had been detained in a Soviet Russian Concentration Camp at Changkufeng, from which they were liberated by the Japanese a few weeks ago and sent to their homes.

These three returned prisoners state that there are still altogether over 700 prisoners-of-war in that camp, 40 of whom came from territories formerly German, but ceded to Prussia to Poland at the end of the World War, several of whom belong to Czechoslovakia and of the rest more than 600 came from Germany itself.

One of the three ex-prisoners of war used to be married in Cracow. His wife has meantime remarried.—Trans-Ocean.

INDIGNATION MOUNTING

Hankow, Yesterday. Indignation is mounting following publication of reports that every body recovered from the C.N.A.C. plane was wounded by machine gun fire and also that the plane was attacked by Japanese fighting planes before it was compelled to land. The attack is characterised as "premeditated murder" by the influential Chinese paper "Ta Kung Pao" — Reuter.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST GUERRILLAS

Peiping, Yesterday. Japanese Headquarters here claim that Japanese and Manchurian troops, supported by Japanese planes, defeated isolated Chinese detachments which have been carrying on guerrilla operations in the region of the Tientsin, Tsinan and Tientsin-Tangku-Shankaukau Railway Lines.

The Chinese guerrilla detachments which were formerly units of the Eighth Route Army later incorporated in the reorganised Ninth Chinese Army, have been compelled to retire to North Hopei, towards the great wall.

The two districts of North Hopei are still in the hands of Chinese guerrilla detachments. —Trans-Ocean.

According to Japanese reports, the Chinese defences have been extraordinarily strengthened in the last few weeks. For the defence of Hankow, strong Chinese forces are being sent forward on both sides of the Yangtze. These forces have several times, in the last few days, come into violent conflict with the Japanese.

The Japanese front, 300 kilometres wide on both sides of the Yangtze, indicates the probability that the central line of attack of the Japanese main offensive will be against the Peiping-Hankow Railway, in the north, and against Hankow in the south.

HARD FIGHTING

As General Chiang Kai-shek is determined to defend the Hankow sector to the last man, Japanese military circles count on hard and difficult fighting, since the Japanese army has still 150 kilometres to pass to reach the Peiping-Canton Railway and the Chinese in this region have constructed extraordinarily strong fortifications.

Moreover, the difficulties that will have to be overcome, especially those that arise through the activities of the Chinese irregulars, are by no means underestimated.

In view of the strategic political and economic significance of Hankow and the Yangtze Valley, Chinese irregulars have recently continuously harassed the advancing Japanese troops and, in particular, made incessant attempts to cut their lines of communication.

For this reason, the Japanese in the last few weeks have often had to send strong troop units to protect their lines of communication. These isolated actions are oc-

SOVIET AID TO CHINA

Changkufeng Gives Japan Rare Shock

FLEXIBILITY IN JAPAN'S "LIMIT OF ENDURANCE"

Tokyo, Yesterday.

Increased Soviet help for China, without worry or fear on Moscow's part of provoking war with Japan, is expected by foreign observers here to be one of the principal results of the Changkufeng affair.

Recent events have clearly shown that, despite the avowed confidence in their ability to fight a war on two fronts, Japan will have to be pushed very far before she takes up arms against the Soviet.

One lesson the Changkufeng incident taught is to the extent to which the principle of localisation can be applied, as well as the flexibility in the "limit of endurance" to which the Japanese spokesman have so often referred.

IN THE CHANGKUFENG INCIDENT, IT IS WORTH NOTING, WAS WITNESSED THE MOST SERIOUS CLASH BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES SINCE THE RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR AND IT MARKED THE FIRST OCCASION WHEREIN ANY PART OF THE JAPANESE EMPIRE WAS ACTUALLY ATTACKED BY RUSSIA.

On the basis of the Japanese casualties, which the War Office estimates at 158 killed and 740 wounded, observers here estimate that the Japanese troops on the "border front" must have amounted to at least one division.

While there is no definite information available, there is reason to believe that the incident resulted in heavy Japanese troop movements to Manchukuo.

EUROPEAN AID DOUBTFUL

Furthermore, it is believed to have been responsible for halting the Japanese drive on Hankow for a good three weeks.

The affair convinced a good section of the Japanese public that, in the event of war with Russia, Japan cannot expect any other quarter in Europe.

Although, while it lasted, the Changkufeng incident caused worry in Japan, and had the effect of making the people feel that the principle of localisation can equally well be applied in future incidents, it is considered that if further incidents occur, there will not be the same fearful expectancy of war, but a reasonable amount of confidence in an amicable settlement.

STAGE-MANAGED

Most Japanese circles appear to be convinced that the incident was carefully stage-managed by Russia as a part of a deliberate plan to harass the Japanese and thus indirectly help the Chinese. Others, however, believe it originated spontaneously.

In these two important heights, Chinese troops mowed down hundreds of Japanese invaders who tried to storm the defence positions.—Central News.

HEAVY LOSSES

Hankow, Yesterday.

Heavy casualties have been suffered by Japanese forces who launched attacks on Pukushan and Liyushan southwest of Juichang.

Perched behind vantage points in these two important heights, Chinese troops mowed down hundreds of Japanese invaders who tried to storm the defence positions.—Central News.

TOKYO NERVOUS

But one thing everyone is certain of, Soviet Russia knows much better to-day how Japan stands and how the Soviet stands.

The Changkufeng incident showed how deeply the Japanese mind is impregnated with the idea of Soviet air-raids on Japan proper.

The citizens of Tokyo and other important cities, capable of being bombed, were obviously nervous and it is very likely that Soviet air-raids would have resulted in a hurried and large scale exodus to the countryside.

Tentative plans for evacuation are known to have been made by many persons on their own initiative.

INADEQUATE A.R.P.

The strength of Tokyo's air forces would not only have been revealed to the public, in the event of actual air-raids, but, while there is little doubt that hostile planes would meet a powerful challenge both from the ground and in the air, there was no concealing the inadequacy of air-raid shelters in the State Department to the effect

HALF MILLION RAISED IN PATRIOTIC DRIVE

THE "PATRIOTIC OFFERINGS CAMPAIGN," LAUNCHED BY THE CHINESE HAS REALISED ALMOST $500,000 IN CHINESE NATIONAL CURRENCY, ACCORDING TO RELIABLE REPORTS LAST NIGHT.

Almost every shop in the Central District displayed white banners inscribed with the amount subscribed towards the campaign, and these attracted great attention among Chinese passers-by.

Among the foreign firms whose staffs generously contributed were the Newspaper Enterprise Company, Limited, publishers of the "Sunday Herald" and the "China Mail," who donated $2,050, the "South China Morning Post" who contributed $2,000, and the local distributors of the American-British Tobacco Company, Limited, who subscribed $20,000.

The largest amount contributed was a sum of $50,000 which came from Messrs. Wang Kee and Company, of Connaught Road.

Prostitutes in the Central District also supported the campaign and it is reported that their contributions amounted to over $2,500.

The amounts are Chinese National Currency.

CABARETS' SUPPORT

It is learned that the management, employees and taxi-dancers of the China Emporium Ball-room, the Cathay Ballroom and the New Majestic Ballroom subscribed a total amount of $3,130.10.

With this sum, a field ambulance has been purchased from the Hong Kong and Shanghai Hotels Garage. The body is now being constructed and as soon as it is completed it will be handed over to the Chinese authorities.

HONG KONG'S NEW WATER CHARGES IN JANUARY TO BE LOWER THAN EXPECTED

An important variation from the proposals of the Financial Secretary (the Hon. Mr. Sydney Caine) as outlined in his memorandum on the water finances of the Colony in April, is revealed in the new Waterworks Ordinance, which including regulations, occupied twenty pages in the "Government Gazette" yesterday, and is to come into force on January 1, 1939.

It is that the basic charges for water supplied for domestic use is to be five cents less per unit of 1,000 gallons, the rates authorised being 45 cents for the Peak instead of 50 cents, 35 cents for the Mid-Levels instead of 40 cents, and 25 cents for Victoria and Kowloon instead of 30 cents.

Mr. Caine's main proposal, that all free allowances, with the exception of those to approved hospitals and approved charitable inmates, be abolished, is, however, retained.

EMERGENCY BLACK-OUT COMING SOON

The public should begin to get ready for the emergency "black-out" warning, which may come at almost any time now, in fact, at any time after Thursday, September 1.

It is expected to come within the week following.

Forty-eight hours warning of a 72-hour period in which the "alarm" will be sounded, will be given.

TOYLAND DISPLAY AT S.C.A.

("Herald" Special)

A toy-land atmosphere of prevails at the S. C. A. as the result of the recent appeal by Miss Harrop for donations of toys for children housed and cared for in the different charitable institutions under the supervision of the S.C.A.

Most of the articles sent were in good condition and playthings which will make the heart of any child go "wild" with joy are now exhibited in Miss Harrop's room. More toys are coming daily and the appeal seems likely to turn out to be a great success.

A general increase of ten per cent, in the Hong Kong price for junk licences, both for trading and fishing junks, is authorised by amendments to the Merchant Shipping Ordinance, approved by Executive Council.

On the basis of the official estimates of revenue, as outlined in the Treasurer's memorandum, the concession of five cents per unit for household consumption, will involve a loss of revenue of approximately $250,000, and it is thought that this has been made possible by reconsideration of the proposal to make an annual charge to cover past expenditure met from revenue.

It is proposed to increase all charges by five per cent, in all cases in which payment is not made within 30 days of the date notified as the date by which payment is required to be made.

It has been decided to make a flat rate for the use of main water for flushing, which will be the same amount as the annual charge for meter rent at the premises. Meter rents vary from $10 per annum payable in advance for a half-inch meter to $100 per annum for a 6-inch meter.

NEW FEATURES

Provision has been made for the following new features:—

(a) power to demand deposits to cover payments for chargeable water.

(b) the licensing of approved plumbers.

(c) the stamping of approved fittings.

(d) charging fees for the privilege of using main water for flushing.

(e) separate floor metering.

(f) the representation of the water authority by authorised officers.

The charging of a fixed fee for the flushing privilege, when exercised, is considered a fairer method than increasing the cost of water used in the premises concerned.

A fee equivalent to the meter rental is proposed so that for an average residence the flushing fee would be $10 per annum in addition to payment at the ordinary rate for all water consumed.

In order to enable separate floor meters to be installed in tenement houses the water authority is given special powers.

Four Arrested In Lightning Raids In Drive Against Slave Traffic

Three Women And Man: Two Girls Not More Than Sixteen

Lady Assistant At S.C.A. Leads Raiding Party

Important evidence regarding one phase of slave trafficking in women in Hong Kong is expected to be produced at the Central Magistracy on Tuesday, when three women and a man will appear before Mr. H. R. Butters, facing charges of trafficking for immoral purposes.

Facts behind the prosecution cannot yet be revealed, but credit for this latest development in the drive against the evil, is again due to Miss Phyllis Harrop, Lady Assistant to the S.C.A., who accompanied by Inspector E. J. Ellis and other members of the S.C.A. staff carried out lightning raids on four different houses in the Central District on Thursday morning.

Two married women, a widow, harbouring the girls for the purpose of prostitution and for aiding and abetting in prostitution for the purpose of gain.

The case will be heard on Tuesday morning beginning at 10 a.m.

FOUR ACCUSED

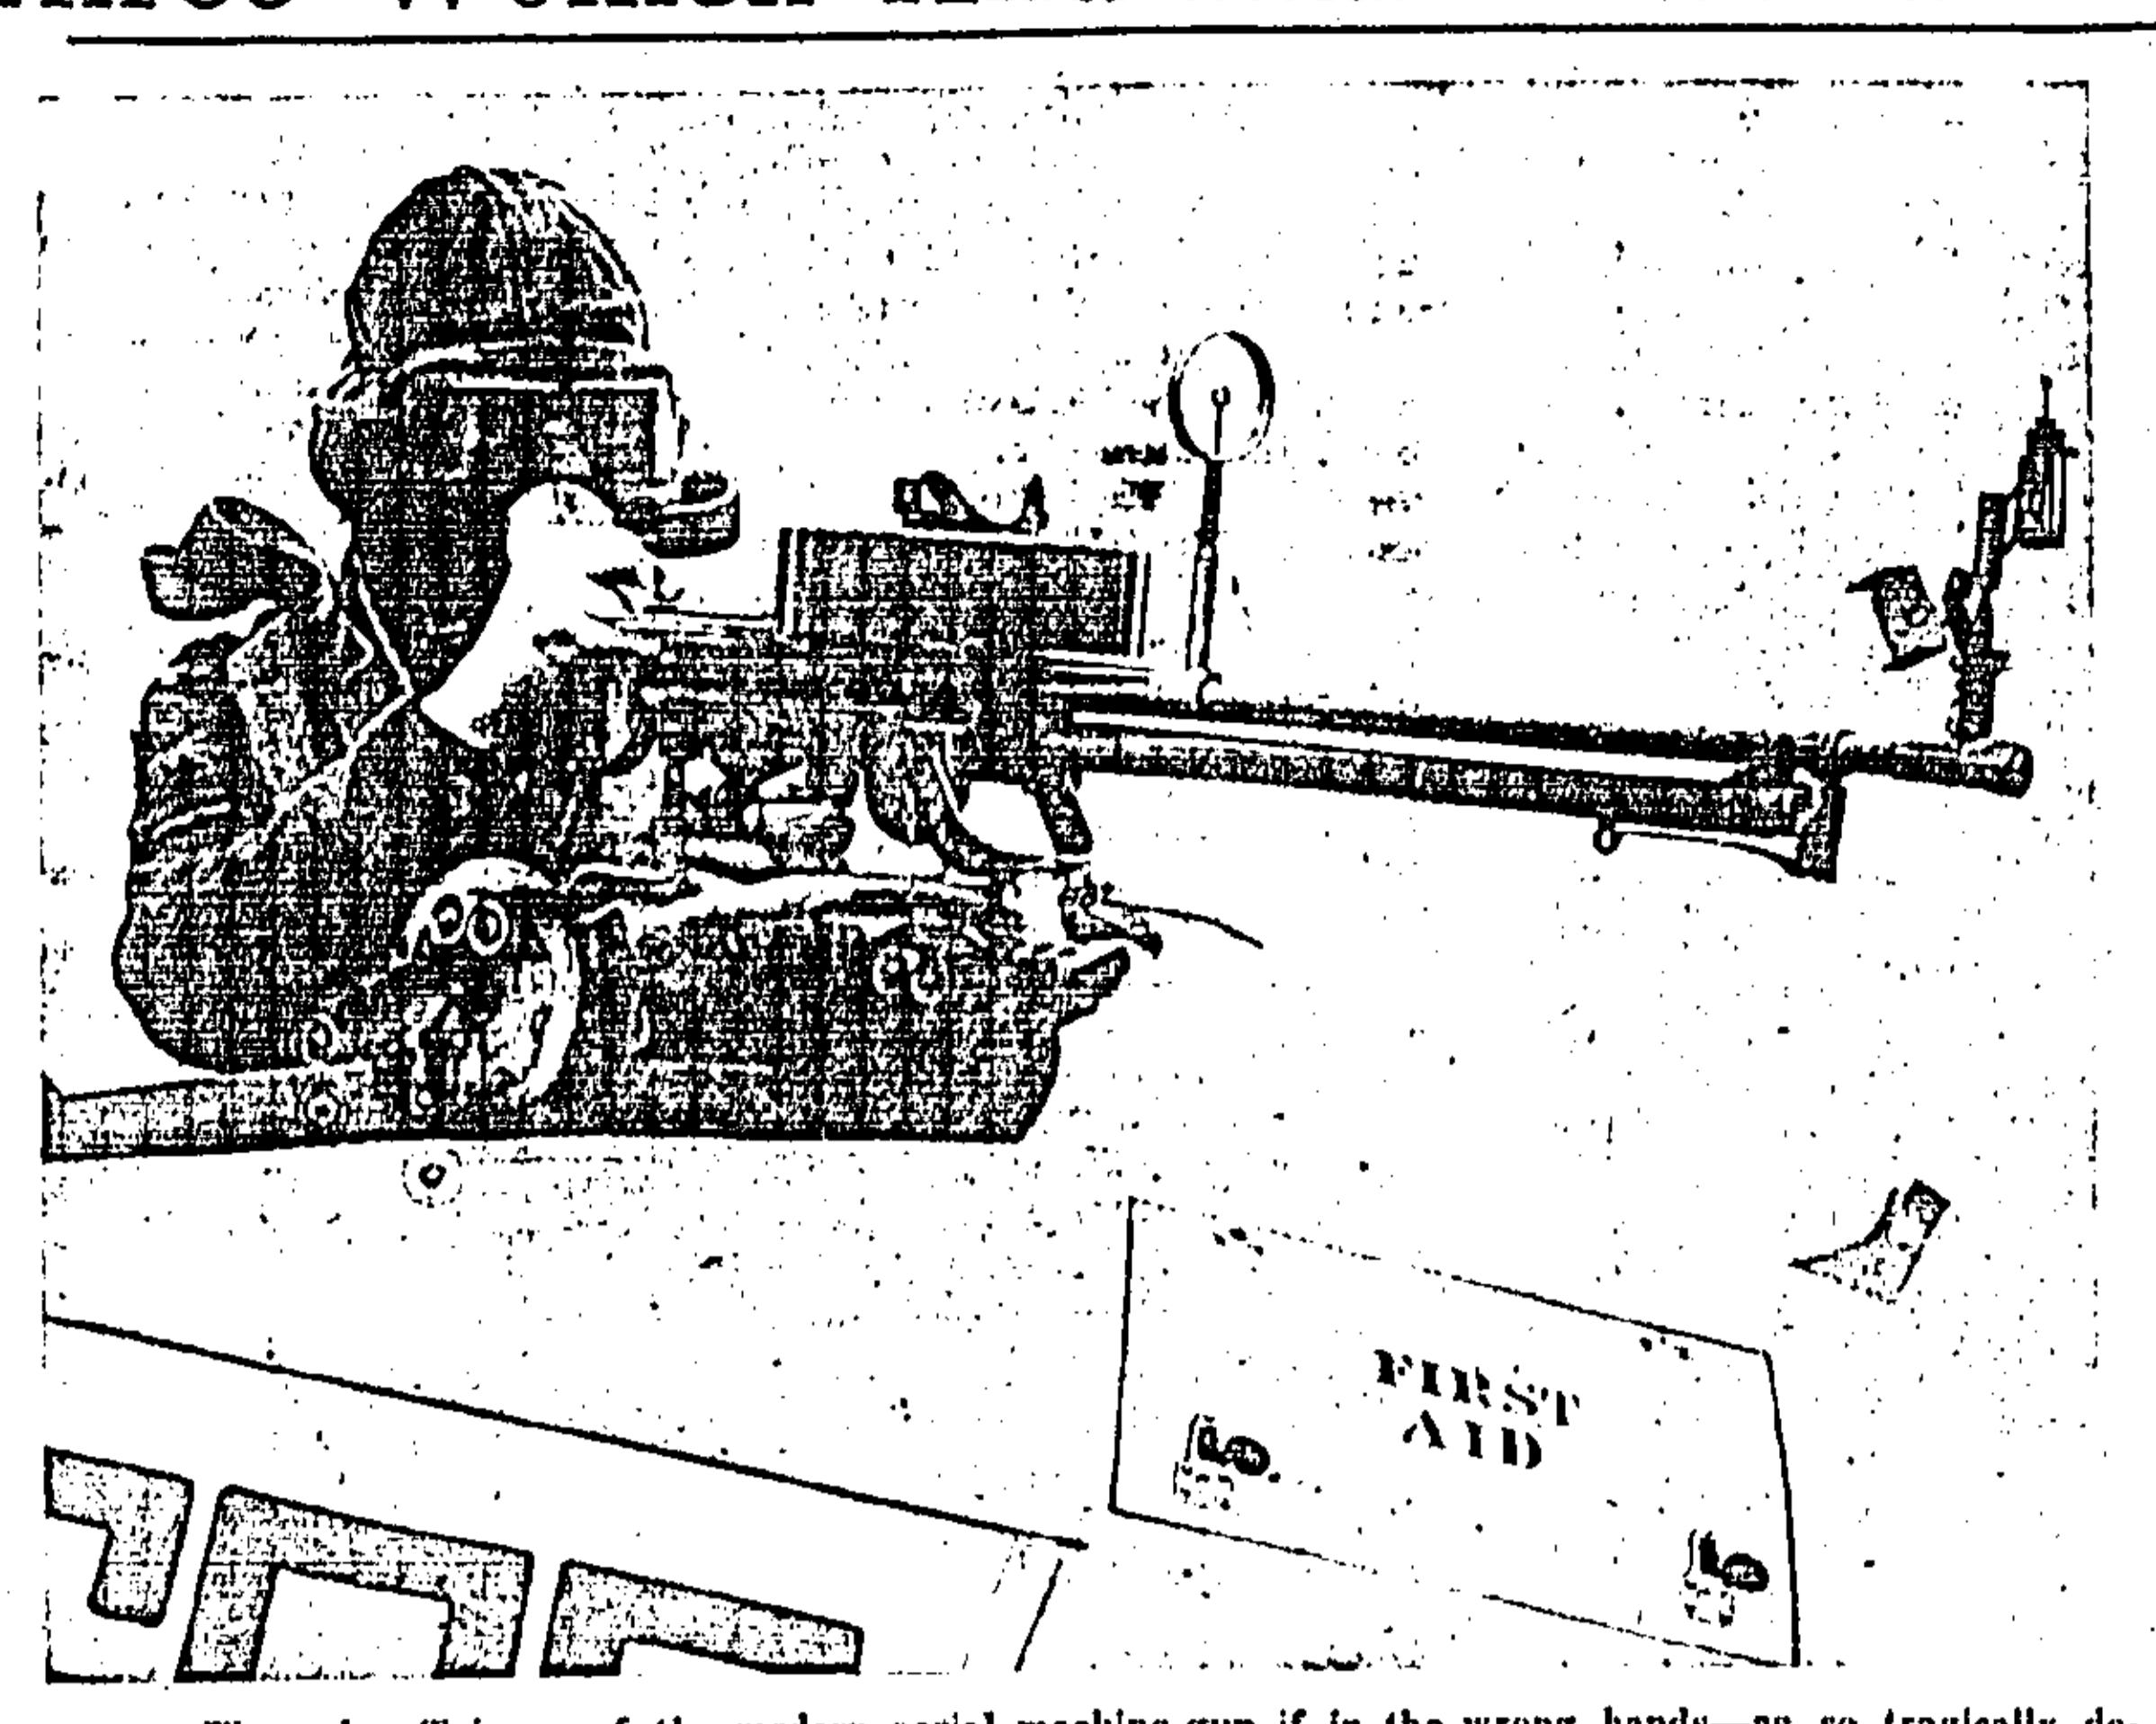

The accused are; Ng Sui-ying, married woman, aged 31 years, of No. 9, Fuk Luk Lane;

Chin Tung-kam, male, aged 38 years, of No. 25 Staunton Street; who is also charged with living on immoral earnings;

Chui Po-Chui, married woman, aged 30 years of No. 11, Fuk Luk Lane; and Chau Lo-sun, widow, aged 42 years, of No. 1, Chung Shing Street.

The girls who were found in the charge of these four persons were; Wong Oi-po, aged 16 years; Chin Fei-fel, aged 19 years; Chin Oi-fan, aged 16 years; Chau Ma-lei, aged 18 years; and Chau Lei-lei, aged 19 years.

The ugly efficiency of the modern aerial machine-gun if in the wrong hands—as so tragically demonstrated in the Japanese attack on the C.N.A.C. air-liner on Wednesday, is vividly typified by this picture.

Racket Corner CHILDREN BARRED FROM PLAYGROUND

Fares Refunded: Notice To Quit

("Herald" SPECIAL)

By A. "Herald" Correspondent UNAUTHORISED "GUIDES" AND "RESERVATION AGENTS" AT THE KOWLOON RAILWAY STATION HAVE DISAPPEARED, FOLLOWING SWIFT ACTION BY THE RAILWAY AUTHORITIES FOLLOWING THE DISCLOSURES IN THE "HERALD" LAST WEEK.

Petty racketeering has now developed at the Southorn Children's Playground, whenever a small-ball match is being played.

Children, for whom the playground was exclusively allotted, have been "barred" from entering.

Small racketeers station themselves at the entrances and only on payment of five or ten cents each are the children allowed to pass.

The "entrance fees" are claimed to be contributions to war relief and refugee funds, but the sceptic is on good ground.

Simple Sanitary Rules To Be Introduced In New Territories

AN ORDINANCE TO EMPOWER GOVERNMENT TO MAKE RULES FOR THE PREVENTION AND ABATEMENT OF NUISANCES IN THE NEW TERRITORIES IS IN DRAFT FOR PRESENTATION TO THE NEXT MEETING OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

It is pointed out that for some years the Government has endeavoured by the giving of lectures, the circulation of notices and the appointment of a Health Officer in an advisory capacity, to educate the villagers in the New Territories in the principles of sanitation.

Other measures have been taken, such as the provision of facilities for scavenging in semi-urban districts, the provision of public latrines, and the assistance of villagers from public funds in the carrying out of small works of improvement to secure more sanitary conditions in certain areas. These measures are in addition to the major works undertaken by the Public Works Department.

It is now considered desirable to supplement these measures by the appointment of an additional staff of Chinese Sanitary Inspectors and to lay down rules for the

INTERNATIONAL FLAG DAY REALISES OVER $10,000

A sum of over $10,000 was collected yesterday as the result of the splendidly organised flag day drive of the H.K. International Medical Relief Association.

More than 700 Chinese and foreign workers assisted in securing the excellent result revealed, headed by Mrs. D. M. Biggar and Mrs. Dunbar.

The counting was undertaken at the Chase Bank by Mr. D. M. Biggar and his American and Chinese staff; and last last evening there remained more than 200 boxes which had not been counted. The total at that stage had exceeded $8,000 and counting is to continue to-day.

Strange circumstances connected with the drive was the discovery of quite a number of Japanese yen; almost equally odd, in view of the object of the collection, was the unearthing of several hundred dollars in bad coins.

NEW MEMBER OF SUGAR COUNCIL

London, Yesterday. The Board of Trade announced the Government has appointed General Sir Hugh Elles as one of the British Delegates on the International Sugar Council, succeeding Lieutenant-Colonel Francis Balfour, resigned.

The appointment will date from September 1st. Sir Hugh Elles was from 1934 until recently, Master-General of Ordnance, War Office. — British Wireless.

PRIVATE FACES IN PUBLIC PLACES

"KARA Slinjoro, estas iom demandon, ear kvarkam in Hong Kong en si mem estas belega, sed mi golegun kelkfoje audi belas muzikojn kaj vidis teatrajn, kio estas el tiel malfacile, kiel trovi ak en denzereto," he said rapidly. "My Dear Sir," translated Mr. Francis Braun, a Ruths' hailing. "It is not easy for me to answer your question, because in many ways Hong Kong is a very beautiful place, but sometimes I should be very, very glad to hear some nice music, or visit the theatre—which is more difficult here than finding water in a desert. How's that?"

"FINE," we said, studying one of the world's foremost authorities on Esperanto. Short, be-spectacled, Hungarian-born, Mr. Braun is pioneering Europe's most practical contribution to world peace in the war-torn East. Invented about 1880 by Doctor L. L. Zamenhof, a Polish dentist, Esperanto had at first a luke-warm reception from Polyglot Europe—now numbers over four million adherents most of whom can read, write, and speak it fluently.

ZAMENHOF who besides being an excellent dentist with a cosmopolitan clientele, was a man of considerable learning and culture. Like many of our now deceased grandfathers, he was a humanitarian, very much pre-occupied with humanity whose problems he considered as his own. One day he was attending to a patient's teeth, when a very simple thought struck him with clarity and force of Newton's celebrated observation on the apple. "There was no difference between the mouth of the man in the chair (A Polish landowner), and the mouth of the Russian Governor." Both were born toothless, teethered, grew a second set, and in middle-age, suffered from an identical toothache. Only the words that came out of their mouths were not common to both—an artificial distinction that prevented common understanding, and which was perhaps the main reason why it was necessary to have two waiting rooms.

THE more Zamenhof thought about this, the more convinced he became that a common tongue would eliminate most of the differences common to the nations of the world. The greatest bar to understanding among men was, he argued, the language barrier. Accordingly, he set himself to devise a mother tongue for all races, an international language that would be the common speech from pole to pole—a task that absorbed all his energies until 1918, when he died, having lived through the greatest misunderstanding in the history of the world.

Calling all bargain hunters! Here is a not-to-be-missed opportunity to purchase that extra frock which is to carry you through until the cold weather. And we really mean that you must take notice because . . . frocks which originally cost twenty dollars or more are to go at half that price on Monday. All summer hats in stock will be given away at $3, and some felt leftovers from last winter . . . nothing old-fashioned about them we assure you . . . at $1. Honest! Accustomed as we are to sales, we have to admit that this one beats any we've heard about for a long time. EXCELA, 188 Nathan Road, is your address, and you'll find there . . . sharkskin suits in white and colours at $14.50, everyday frocks in linen and cotton for less than $10, printed chiffons for afternoon tea at $15, and a whole batch of evening gowns in dainty marquiseets, chintons, washable taffetas and crepes, dotted swans and flowered linen . . . all under $35. The sale will last for one week only . . . so don't say we didn't warn you.

The fickle male has an eye for girls who are not only good dressers, but who have a flawless skin as well. Quite one of the surest ways to keep of making the most of the latter is to use COLONIAL DAMES by Vaseline preparations regularly and without fail. The All-Purpose, for instance, is one of those wonderfully anti-faciey cleansing creams that soften the skin noticeably, even after one application. It contains Vitamin D which, as you know, has no equal when it comes to rejuvenating tired tissues. The astringent is another tried-and-true favourite that helps to keep the pores closed . . . so if you are not already devoted to the use of COLONIAL DAMES' cosmetics and are, perhaps, a little dissatisfied with your present aids to beauty—change over at once. You can test the true benefits of COLONIAL DAMES' magic by first making an appointment with the AHANA BEAUTY PARLOR, 2nd floor, Alexandra Building, where free individual make-up demonstrations are given daily.

As glamorous as the regime of Louis XIV . . . as modern as next month's issue of Vogue, the new Autumn handbags in the Ladies' Salon of LANE, CRAWFORD'S. Stitched folds that lead to gold clasps; graceful handles that curl 'round golden spirals are highlights of the new mode. Favourite of the 1938-39 handbag fastenings is the telescope type featuring a brand new method of opening and closing your bag. Your choice of suede and boxcalf, boxcalf and python, in black, brown, and any of the important new colors. Suede is elegant, and the evening bags with exotic frames and jewel-studded clasps. Black suede leads the field, with rich brocade a close second. Newcomer worth noting is black lace over white satin . . . and guaranteed to score a complete knockout in a black suede model with imitation jade frame, studded with synthetic rubies, emeralds and diamonds.

CARNATION MILK is fast becoming a household word . . . and no wonder. It has gained that popularity by its own merits. In the kitchen it is unsurpassed as the milk which puts the cream into creaminess, and in the nursery it is unexcelled as the milk which puts the bone into backbone. Among home economics experts CARNATION MILK has an extremely wide acceptance. These women, to whom cooking is both a science and an art, choose it not only for the definitely improved quality which it gives to so many dishes, but because its convenient and dependable form and its freedom from waste, are in keeping with modern standards of efficiency in the kitchen. Among leading baby specialists, it is considered the best milk that can be given a bottle-fed baby, because it is far easier to digest than ordinary milk; it agrees with many babies who are unable to take milk in any other form, and because it is absolutely safe. If you have not already made CARNATION MILK your household word . . . call up your comprador for a can or a case to-day.

"I'll be loving you always," seems to be fashion's feeling for that happy combination black and white. More than ever this coming winter, they will jointly lead the fashion parade. Predictions are seen in the many soul-stirring designs at MISS NAYLOR'S . . . advance styling in early Autumn dresses that you'll wear well into the cold weather. Taken by and large they present a delectable group. One notices a good deal of white embroidery in Angora wool on black grounds. One notices, too, that Angora is used a lot in cardigans and jumpers to be worn with odd skirts. There is a black afternoon model that uses a good deal of silk fringe which set our pulses racing. We were torn between its slim lines and a fat green beetle perched on the right shoulder blade. We loved the collection of smart fitting suits . . . and we resolved to urge you to call there early.

Mr. Braun, himself, came to the Far East about a year ago to publish books in Esperanto for the instruction of the Japanese and Chinese. Originally he intended to make his headquarters in Kobe, but made the cardinal error of approaching through Russia. In consequence, his passport bore Bolshevik insignia, a fact that determined the Japanese to test his bona fides. Accordingly, he trotted up a Japanese Esperantist whom Mr. Braun named as having been a correspondent of his when he was in Europe. This gentleman listened to Mr. Braun's conversation with an air of wisdom, and translated his remarks at some length to the Japanese police. After which, they politely but firmly refused Mr. Braun permission to land.

THIS decision dumbfounded Mr. Braun, and until he entered into conversation with a Chinese Esperantist, remained a dark mystery. Then, he discovered that although the latter could read and write Esperanto perfectly, he was unable to understand a word of what Mr. Braun the Japanese Esperantist told him was talking about. Just what his countrymen, Mr. Braun can only guess, but anyway he is inclined to forgive him, because Mr. Braun says it must have been a great shock to the Expert to discover that he was listening to double-dutch.

Cakes And Sawdust

BROADLY, we have reached a "scientific age," which wants to know what we noticed a little patisserie named the Chocolate Shop. There were no chocolates in the window and hardly any cakes, to be precise five small plates with five small cakes on each. Curious as to how anybody could manage to eke out a living with such a slender stock-in-trade, we entered, and got into conversation with the proprietor.

TO begin with Mr. Yvanovich doesn't believe in advertising. This in itself is a heresy of the first water, and according to the experts Mr. Yvanovich should have been out of business before he began. Secondly, Mr. Yvanovich only bakes five kinds of cakes, thereby refuting the idea that the customer needs to be tempted by a hundred varieties before he will buy one. Thirdly, he makes the great mistake of selling a smaller cake than those retailed by high class competitors for twice their price, a practice most shopkeepers would consider suicidal.

AT least we thought it was a mistake until he told us he'd been repeating it every day for the past eight years, and made a comfortable profit for every one of them. All of which suggests that there is something seriously wrong with modern business practice. When hardheaded business men run up a concrete block with chromium fittings, engage a large staff specially trained in salesmanship, buy whole pages in the newspapers, and cut the price to the bone, in order to market a product, be it cakes, sausages, or toothpaste, and count themselves fortunate if they make enough to pay the interest on the overdraft at the bank, Mr. Yvanovich by comparison appears a superman.

WHICH in fact he is, because to-day it takes a superman to realize a simple truth. And the truth about selling cakes is so simple that hardly a confectioner in the land is able to understand it. In fact we ourselves only grasped it after having eaten one of Mr. Yvanovich's custards. The custard was light, sweet, tainted of eggs, butter, and milk, and made us immediately wish for another. In short, it was all that a custard should be, and nothing at all like the synthetic mixture that commercial custards seem to be composed of. It cost ten cents, and had it cost twenty we should have paid cheerfully.

Those who are already acquainted with THE CAMERA EXCHANGE SERVICE, don't have to have its praises sung. They know that for expert developing and printing, pleasing portrait studies, good bargains in second-hand cameras, and helpful advice on all matters pertaining to photography, this firm is well in the front rank of its trade. But even its devotees will be glad to hear that THE CAMERA EXCHANGE SERVICE have recently acquired the services of a first-class camera repairman who is reputed to be a regular doyen at his job . . . who is known to have succeeded in where others failed, and who is willing to undertake any job no matter how difficult or difficult. He will clean and repair binoculars, too, and his charges are reasonable. And just to remind you—THE CAMERA EXCHANGE SERVICE have secured a few more second-hand cameras, which have been put into first-class working condition, and they are willing to sell or exchange them for any camera you might wish to dispose of. They're located at 1 Middle Road, Kowloon . . . so look them up sometime.

H.N. Brailsford Says That The Publicity Given To Hitler's "Preparations For An Early War" Is

Reassuring

THE INFERENCE

On which anxious corner of the tormented earth shall a commentator fix his gaze? The frontier struggle between the Soviet Union and Japan has ended in a victory for common sense. The Russians had right on their side, and did well to be firm.

But this is a barbarous world in which hundreds of young men must lay down their lives over a question of prestige, because the Simona, Lavalas and Houres wrecked the League that might have upheld the law without this sacrifice.

There are much graver reasons for anxiety over Czechoslovakia. With a maximum of publicity, Hitler makes his preparations for an early war.

The publicity goes a little way to reassure me, for it looks like bluff. Unhappily, one has no confidence that Downing Street will stand up to bluff. It may prefer to drive the Czechs into concessions that approach surrender.

Spain, however, is the region that calls most loudly for attention. "Is there anything new to say about it?" the reader may ask, with a yawn. "Another British ship has been sunk, and a second bombarded. Barcelona has been bombed again. Both sides claim victories as usual.

"Arm-in-arm" with Downing Street, Mussolini continues to send fresh men and arms to Spain. The French frontier is hermetically sealed. And the Foreign Office continues to admire its own plan for the withdrawal of volunteers.

"It is all as stale and as cynical as ever. There's nothing to say."

WILL TO VICTORY

None the less, there is. The military position for those of us who realise that the Spanish Republic is fighting for Europe's liberty and ours is extremely interesting and promising.

This Republic is literally unconquerable. It loses territory, only to emerge more confident and militant than before. Its two new offensives have completely checked Franco's dangerous drive along the coast towards Sagunto and Valencia.

The crossing of the Ebro was a brilliant feat of surprise. It is true that the rebels have rallied here, and have contrived to drive in the Republican right wing. But the Republicans hold their main positions round Gaudesa, and so long as they retain this advantage, the march towards Valencia cannot be resumed.

While two Republican armies—one south of Teruel and the other on the Ebro's right bank—batter the salient that separates Catalonia from the Levante, yet another offensive has been undertaken with some early success across the road from Lerida to Balaguer.

One dare not hope for a spectacular breakthrough; an army inferior in air power, tanks and artillery may never manage that. But one has the impression of a stubborn will to victory on the Republican side.

What was still, a year ago, in great part an untrained militia, one concerned has reckoned, now dares to undertake not one eluding its authors in Downing Street.

Failure Of British Plan For Spain

BRITISH PLAN FAILS

What would alter this prospect? Of course, a prompt and honest application of the British plan for the withdrawal of foreign combatants would transform it at once.

The Republic may have at most about 10,000 volunteers in the heroic Brigade, which has just lost two gallant and brilliant young men, who sacrificed lives of exceptional promise—Clive and Guest.

Franco may have from 80,000 to 100,000 Italians and Germans. If he can imagine the evacuation of all, or even half, his foreign airmen, it is obvious that this alone would change the whole course of the war, for on his side very few Spanish pilots have been trained.

The withdrawal of the German technical troops would be almost as decisive.

It would matter so much that it will not happen—or, rather, it could happen only after Franco had destroyed the Republican armies. To cripple his air force would be to end his hopes of victory.

This is so clear that no normal unofficial mind, in this country or any other, has even taken the faintest interest in Mussolini's promise to withdraw or in the British plan. It can be neutralised.

What was still, a year ago, in great part an untrained militia, one concerned has reckoned, now dares to undertake not one eluding its authors in Downing Street.

DOES YOUR CHILD LOOK TOO THIN?

Many a mother strives to console herself with the thought that her child, although dreadfully thin, is "wiry". Only too well does she realise that an extra few pounds of weight would make such a difference to the child's appearance and be such a protection against the attacks of disease.

The thin child always has to suffer. Why—oh, why? When a course of Clotab is given, complete, body-building protection—fill out the hollows in the chest, increase the girth of arms and legs, make the cheeks plump and round.

If you could only get the child to take Cod or Halibut Liver Oil you might get the same result. In Clotab you have the vitamins of the finest, richest and purest Halibut Liver Oil in, tiny sugar-coated tablets, easy to take, pleasant to taste, clean and inviting. Two of these are as beneficial as a dose of Halibut Liver Oil, which would you rather give your child? Which would the child rather have?

Don't be anxious, mother. Start your child on a course of Clotab tomorrow. As the little one gets stronger and healthier, you will have a good reason to bless the day you started the Clotab course. Get a bottle from your dispensary or store to-day. If you have any difficulty in obtaining them, write to: Bunker & Co., P.O. Box 755, Hong Kong.

QUICK NEW STRENGTH AFTER ILLNESS.

After a severe illness you feel so weak, you often despair of ever getting your strength back. Especially after operations, or wasting and other illnesses that affect your digestion, the thought of food is distasteful. Yet you must rebuild your body—you must have highly nourishing food.

Doctors everywhere recommend Horlicks as the food that not only can be easily digested, but that stimulates your faded appetite and pours quick new strength into your exhausted body.

Convalescence is shortened and in an amazingly short time you feel full of vigour and strength. Always keep Horlicks ready at hand.

In these difficult times of anxiety and worry, the task of carrying on and doing work which must be done is a doubly difficult one which must tend to exhaust one's nervous energy.

Horlicks builds up strength, vitality and prevents the listlessness and tiredness caused by constant nervous strain. H. M. Hodges, 406-408, Ada Life Building, Queen's Road, Hong Kong.

X-Ray confirms cure OF GASTRIC ULCERS!

Perhaps your stomach trouble is not so serious as that of Mr. H. J. George, whose letter appears below. All the better, because then you can be doubly sure that the remedy that brought him relief will give you freedom also. Mr. George's letter shows how Maclean Brand Stomach Powder is as effective in healing as it is in protecting the stomach and preventing further trouble.

A different man in 24 hours

"I have proved what a marvellous cure your Stomach Powder is, twelve months ago, after suffering for 15 years, and having had three operations for gastric ulcers in hospital.

"After taking your wonder powder, I felt a different man. In the first 24 hours, and am now keeping quite fit. When I told the specialist he said: 'Very good, and we'll think about it.' This was done later, and he tells me it has made a complete cure, thanks to Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. That is why I am so pleased to pass it on to anyone with the same trouble. You may make any use you like of this letter, as I can prove every word." — H. J. GEORGE.

This intense desire to help other sufferers to get the same relief is characteristic of all who have written of their experiences with Maclean Brand Stomach Powder.

How Maclean Brand Stomach Powder removes pain

Thousands of sufferers have been set free from a life of pain by Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. Pain comes from pressure, the pressure of wind or gas in the stomach which is caused by fermenting matter. If you take Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, nothing impure can remain in the stomach—it removes the pain because it removes the cause.

It neutralizes the acid that eats into the stomach wall and repairs the damage by putting a protective coating over the delicate parts.

CABBAGES and men

THERE is a fact at the root of all realities to-day which for some reason or other never gets stated. It is, quite simply, that the rulers of modern society have made up their minds that ordinary men are not fit for freedom.

This profound pessimism of authority in the real cause of the sharp sickness of our age; a morbid insanity that has most of Europe in its grip. In England almost alone, the process of going mad is still in the embryonic stage for the sole reason that the English do not know that it is going on.

The madness of the body politic is to the body political outside the body politic. But the darkest cloud does not obscure the sky, above, nor the blackest prosaic blot out the horizon. If they did, one could leave the situation to the Admirals and the Generals. Unfortunately, the muck is within and not without—a confusion our forefathers escaped.

To desert metaphor—the real danger is not that the Germans, the Italians, or the Russians, may conquer the British Empire, but that their methods will.

Cheerful Vulgarity

The cheerful vulgarity of that once popular chorus that "Britons never, never shall be slaves," was really a popular expression of a profound religious ideal. Behind that happy optimism lay a deep-rooted instinct for liberty. And liberty implies choice; and choice is the essential difference between men and cabbages—for a cabbage preserves itself by law, and a man by choosing between good and evil.

Even the after-Britain movement is but part of the general trend towards regimentation.

A spiritual distinction that is often overlaid by material propaganda. The fact, right or wrong, that there is no unemployment in Hitler's Germany, that Italian mothers receive a handsome bonus for bearing twins, and that every Russian gets a fortnight's holiday in the sun, is pure cabbagery unless there are German tramps, Italian spinsters, and Russians who stay at home because the mere sight of waves makes them sea-sick.

The Norm Of The Cabbage

Now the primary characteristic of National Socialism, Fascism, and Communism, is to reduce everybody under the system to the norm of a cabbage. Irrespective of all the queer, complicated motives that fill the lives of men, there must be no tramps, no unfertilized women, and no pale faces.

These aims and a thousand more sinister are enforced by hordes of privileged officials whose sole job it is to grow moral and political cabbages; fine, flourishing cabbages, but none the less vegetables.

Their allegiance is to the system, an abstract ideal that anti-mates the civil servants of our own state, and one which unless checked results in a vast immoral, harassed, and threatened by cabbagery. And until recently, the thousand and one ordinances that morally, politically, and socially, are designed to make them cabbages.

The Official Ukase

In fact the primary characteristic of the English has been their dislike of being converted into cabbages. All down his history, the Englishman has shown a root-and-distrust of permanent officials. The Civil Service is subordinate to a Secretary of State and a parliament of uncivil amateurs. Judges in all important cases are provided with juries who are innocent of the technicalities of the law. Nearly everyone of the highly paid professionals in charge of different departments of public life are subject to untrained supervisors whose business is to act as kind of lay watch-dog.

In short, the tendency of the English is to prefer inefficiency to tyranny, and to set above everything else the liberty of the subject.

To-day, this cardinal principle is in grave danger. Using the threat of another Armageddon as a cloak, the Permanent Officials have convinced the Government that the only way to national safety lies in national noddling. Parliament composed of common men elected by common consent, is carefully legislating away the liberties of the common people.

Warned Off

Contempt Of Liberty in the Air

What is worse the common people are passive witnesses of the common strangling. Put before the experts, the contempt of liberty is in the air. All kinds of coercive laws are being passed,

The loss of liberty in the writing world is even greater, and the present situation, if the newspapers were not the last defenders of free speech, would be Gilbertian. I am allowed to say that all women should practice birth control rather than bear abolishing the right of free speech, overriding Habeas Corpus, and in general curtailing the freedom of individuals without even a squeak of protest from the individual.

By Hugh O'Beirne

Never before has it been so easy to slide bills through Parliament framed to lock people up for saying what they think. Never was it so simple to silence criticism and cover up rotteness in high places. Never has Governmental respect for the rights of the electorate been at a lower ebb than it is to-day.

Abolished In Hong Kong

If freedom is fast vanishing in Merrie England, it has been abolished in her dependencies. In Hong Kong, which in normal times is administered by permanent officials who treat the private citizen as if he were a small boy whose nose needs wiping every five minutes, Governmental pressure has reduced the private citizen to the level of the private soldier.

And they have been so reduced without realising it. For Government does not develop and defend its laws with fierce consistency, however devilish, as did the tyrants of old. It has not the virtues that inspire respect, nor the vices that breed hate. It is a dry, arid flat, with all the potty arrogances that go with officials who have only their position.

children to be massacred in the next war, but if I write that the "Lomshires" will inevitably be massacred under the leadership of Colonel X, I invite prosecution for having corrupted the Armed Forces of the Crown. The muzzling extends to graft, shady finance, and incompetence in high places, and any writer who attempts to expose the facts, is warned off, and there the matter drops.

In short, liberty among the English in Hong Kong, Honduras, or Home, is not even an illusion to-day. At the moment no one seems to mind very much, and the general tenor is a torpid indifference. This cabbage-like attitude being diametrically opposed to the genius of the people who wrung Magna Carta out of their king, and kicked the Cromwellians out, is only possible to Englishmen who have come to prefer safety to freedom.

Detecting The Difference

Unfortunately, there is no guarantee of the former where the latter is sacrificed. To me the difference, "say," between being locked up for omitting to attend an A.R.P. parade—a distinct possibility in the near future—and neglecting to shout "Heil Hitler" is not an appreciable one. In either case one is a prisoner, and likely to envy the cabbage outside the cell window.

EUROPEAN CRISIS

IT is a sombre prospect that Europe is being compelled to contemplate. For little further attempt is being made even in London, traditionally the last to abandon hope of an eleven-hour ray of sunshine, to conceal the fact that the crisis over the future of Czechoslovakia is rapidly coming to a head and that the hour may well be disastrous. It is true that a last-minute endeavour is being made to avert catastrophe. The "purely private" visit of Mr. Ashton-Gwatkin to the Foreign Office is invested with the deepest significance, coupled as it has been with subsequent hits that Britain will make a clear declaration of her intention to throw her weight on the side of France in the event that she becomes involved in war in support of her obligations to Czechoslovakia. In Prague, a further plan designed to tempt the Sudeten Germans with a compromise offer has been evolved, which tells two things very clearly, one, that Lord Runciman sees no possible hope of an agreement on the basis of the attitudes respectively adopted by the Czechs and the Sudeten Germans; and two, that the great bulk of the German army manoeuvres is causing anxiety outside as well as inside the Reich. In a semi-official statement by the British Government, the view is again emphasised that an agreed and peaceful solution of the minorities problem in Czechoslovakia is not beyond the reach of wise statesmanship, if that quality is forthcoming from both sides and all parties concerned. The implication is unmistakable. There is a gloomy feeling in British quarters that wisdom may not emerge as the final arbiter, and that a critical juncture has been reached. The problem which remains to be resolved is how far, if at all, Herr Henlein is committed to Herr Hitler, and, if that committal is as complete as some observers allege, how far Herr Hitler is prepared to go.

The bait is admittedly tempting. "The master of Bohemia is the master of Europe," Bismarck once said; and if Germany could add to her seventy-five millions the control of a further population of fifteen millions, with their mineral and agricultural resources and with the great armament industries of Skoda and Wittkowitz, she would be irresistible in the Danube basin; Hungary, Yugoslavia and Rumania would pass into her sphere, she would soon control the Rumanian oil fields and would be ready to apply Herr Hitler's famous anti-Russian programme in the Ukraine. Germany would be the master of the Continent.

It is from this aspect that the Czech problem must be regarded. It is the strategic key to hegemony in Europe, quite apart from the sympathies or antipathies which one may have for the only state in Eastern Europe which has been able to maintain a system of free democratic and representative government. It has been repeatedly stated officially in the last few months that in the event of an attack upon Czechoslovakia both France and Russia will fulfil their treaty pledges of assistance, and Czechoslovak opinion, while showing exemplary calm, has unanimously endorsed the resolution of its Premier, Dr. Hodza, to "Defend, defend, defend!" Mr. Chamberlain is expected to make it even clearer that war, if it came, would also almost inevitably involve others besides "the parties of the original dispute."

The Prague Government, so far from resenting outside advice, has publicly accepted it in the form of the Runciman Mission, which quickly succeeded in introducing a calmer atmosphere in all discussions. There are, however, two points on which no Czechoslovak Government can yield. It cannot give up those purely defensive alliances with France and Russia which are the guarantees of its independence, and it cannot surrender to local autonomous bodies the control of the state police. It is not quite easy to explain the function of a state police under a Ministry of the Interior in every continental country; but what happened in Austria last February when Dr. Schuschnigg surrendered police control to a National Socialist nominee, will give the necessary clue. If the Sudeten Germans are to be the Trojan Horse admitted to the Bohemian fortress in a struggle of major power politics, then the future for Europe is indeed dark. But if the new charter is, after negotiation, to become the basis of an honourable compromise, it may also become a model to be copied in other scarcely less burning minority problems on the Hungarian, Polish and Balkan borders, and it may usher in a new era of appeasement.

No Japanese military excess could have shocked the world more profoundly than did the outrageous attack of which Japanese naval Hull lodged a protest in Tokyo, on the occasion of the meeting of Signor Mussolini and pursuit planes were guilty on the basis of preliminary reports of the affair, and not couched Herr Hitler. It was odd, but in the vigorous terms anticipated, not important, that an apparent agreement between the Little C.N.A.C. commercial airline, with the cold-blooded murder of fourteen of the seventeen persons on board. The enormity of the offence was emphasised by the strong ground for suspicion that Mr. Sun Fo, President of the Legislative Yuan, was believed to be on board, and that the squadron waited outside Hong Kong for the "Kwelling" to appear, intent upon sending him to his death. The pilot, Mr. R. L. Woods, made a perfect emergency landing on a river near Wangmoen, after his plane had been under heavy fire, whereupon the grim nature of the attack became obvious. Occupants escaping in the water were shot dead and the machine sent to the bottom riddled with bullets. Only when the plane had sunk and no sign of life remained did the attackers cease fire.

There could be no apology for this exhibition of ruthlessness and the Japanese ventured none, choosing instead to adopt a bold front and attempt to justify it. The damaging admission was made that no warning was given to any commercial air service of the Japanese view that they operated at their own risk. The claim that the attackers desisted on discovering the identity of the machine was repudiated by the evidence of Mr. Woods and by villagers who watched the atrocity from first to last.

International repercussions developed immediately, first because the C.N.A.C. is partly American-owned, and secondly because the Japanese, conscious undoubtedly of the enormity of the outrage, sought to suppress the story in Shanghai by exercising a censorship at the cable office in Shanghai, which was swiftly challenged by the British Ambassador. Mr. Cordell

Admiral Horthy's visit to Germany was the occasion for an effulgence of politically-conscious enthusiasm scarcely paralleled in the history of the occasion of the meeting of Signor Mussolini and Britain and Japan talked discussions, but came to no nearer a conclusion. Anti-British feeling in Japan, on the contrary, showed itself sharply, and extremist opinion clearly continued to dominate the situation. When Sir Robert Cratfield bid his farewell to General Ugaki with nothing accomplished, no arrangements were made for further conversations.

General Franco replied to the British Plan proposals and London would probably have thanked him to procrastinate a little longer. His points of objection to detail were of a nature to re-open every question settled by the non-intervention committee only after long, painful and frequently bitter discussions. Britain's response was to play for further time, sending back to Franco for explanation.

Guerillas offered continual harassment to the Japanese in all parts of the country. In North China, railway services are subjected to constant interruption and delays by reason of persistent wrecking of tracks, trains have been derailed, and small garrisons wiped out. In Shanghai, the irregulars have been engaging Japanese troops within five miles of the International Settlement, while the Japanese hold in the Hangchow region is admitted to have become increasingly precarious.

The general political outlook was such that Franco almost, but not quite, forgot its quarrel over the principle of the forty-hour week, viewing problems of national defence as far more to the immediate point.

SCRUTATOR.

Battle Of Ideas: by Sir Noel Curtis-Bennett
FIELDS AND FITNESS

GREAT Britain is spending millions of pounds every year on public health, hospitals, sanatoriums, housing, the abolition of slums and overcrowding; in short, on the curative social services. Why? Because of a legacy of dirt, disease, dismal surroundings and lack of thought bequeathed to us by our forefathers of the industrial revolution.

They are not to blame, since they were so closely engaged in developing new systems of business, commerce and trade, within and without the shores of this country, that life itself and all that it means became fogged in the cloud of new experiment.

Are we of this age and generation any better? What will our great grandchildren say of us who talk glibly of town planning, of better housing, clean streets, schools to be proud of, medical services from before the cradle until the grave, who pass new laws on a hundred and one aspects of the social services at a rate which must and can only give our central and local administrators a violent and permanent attack of verbal indigestion?

Will they command us for our foresight in permitting houses to be built on arterial roads, in or 14 years ago, the national conscience had not been awakened to the deleterious effects of the "squat" where he will, in devoting something less than £6,000,000 out of our total national and local expenditure of nearly £1,500,000,000 to the provision of facilities for outdoor physical recreation?

I think not. * * * We shall probably be condemned for letting slip the greatest opportunity yet presented to mankind to plan for leisure in an era which is rapidly establishing a system of shorter hours of work, of a shorter working life, of regulated and progressive wages and salaries.

We are making very little provision for the use of those leisure hours by the majority of citizens to improve their health, their physique, their moral and mental outlook, their happiness and the consequent achievement of the Greek ideal of the good life. The problem is serious, it

The National Playing Fields Association, after having made a scientific investigation into the question, laid down a minimum standard of six acres of playing fields per 1,000 of the population.

There is hardly a town or village in the country which has not achieved this standard—in fact, the vast majority of villages are without any public playing fields at all.

The money is available, the expert knowledge and advice will be given for the asking to all who care to ask, from the largest local authority down to the smallest voluntary sports association.

The problem of playing fields in the towns is a vastly different problem from that of the villages, and since the majority of people are herded together in towns, it is in this direction that the future of playing fields requires some investigation and planning. It is not enough to say: "Here is a playing field, go to it," when going to it means a long and perhaps expensive journey.

Slum clearance and the abatement of overcrowding should give every housing authority a chance to reserve some land for the physical recreation of the rehoused tenants. Town planning authorities might do worse than adopt the standard of the National Playing Fields Association by ensuring that at least six acres of playing fields are reserved in their plans for every 1,000 inhabitants.

Private builders, in co-operation with local and town planning authorities, would not only become public benefactors, but would also enhance the value of their estates if they were to ensure adequate playing space conveniently situated and within easy reach of the people whom they desire to attract to their estates.

Some such measures as these, if adopted now, before it is too late, would ensure a series of centres for outdoor physical recreation within easy reach of the majority of the people of this country. The cost would be negligible compared with the ultimate reduction in our bill of ill health.

Japan's Idea Of Cynical Deal With Britain At China's Expense

Sharply Rejected By "Times" Analysing Anti-British Movement

Struggle Between Extremists And "Elder Clique"

LONDON, YESTERDAY.

"BRITAIN WILL NOT BUY JAPANESE FRIENDSHIP WITH A CYNICAL DEAL AT CHINA'S EXPENSE."

This affirmation is made by "The Times" in a lead analysing a dispatch from its Tokyo correspondent, dealing with the anti-British movement in Japan as affected by the struggle between "youthful dynamism" and what would generally be called the "elder clique."

VIOLENT ELEMENTS

Maybe in the recent past, more might have been done by co-operation and the better ordering of world resources to meet Japan's needs in the way of economic expansion to relieve the pressure of a rapidly-growing population, but it was the violent elements which broke up the possibility of a genuine Pacific partnership as foreseen in 1922 at Washington, and has harnessed their country to a crude, ignorant preference for winning markets by buyouts.

SWIFT RISE

The hope of co-operation is not now to be revived by invitations to Britain to share in a cynical deal at the expense of China.

Japan owes her swift rise to greatness to men of foresight, steadfast wisdom and conspicuous ability. "The same arts that did gain a Power, must it maintain." — Reuter.

BRITISH AIR SHADOW FACTORY EXTENSION

London, Yesterday. The Air Minister, Sir Kingsley Wood, in Bristol, announced a further extension of the British Air Force.

The Minister declared that the Government had voted £1,200,000 for an extension of the Rodney Works which, as will be recalled, had already received £1,500,000 last year.

The Minister expressed the hope that the new works would be able to begin building machines this year.

GERMAN SHIP SUNK BY ICEBERG?

Hamburg, Yesterday.

The training ship of the Hamburg America Line "Admiral Karpfanger," first reported missing six months ago and the fate of which has since remained a complete mystery, is now regarded in German shipping circles as lost.

The search for the ship was carried out with the assistance of the Chilean and Argentine Navy and has failed to solve the mystery.

Although there appears little hope now of finding the ship it is understood that the search will be continued.

"Admiral Karpfanger" set sail from Port German in South Australia, on February 6, with cargo of wheat.

The last message received from her was sent out from the Southern Pacific Ocean.

In view of the fact that the reports were coming in at a time of the presence of an abnormal number of icebergs in the Southern Pacific waters, it is held likely that the vessel crashed into an iceberg. She had 60 young German seamen on board. — Trans-Ocean.

WHAT DO YOU INTEND TO DO ABOUT THIS?

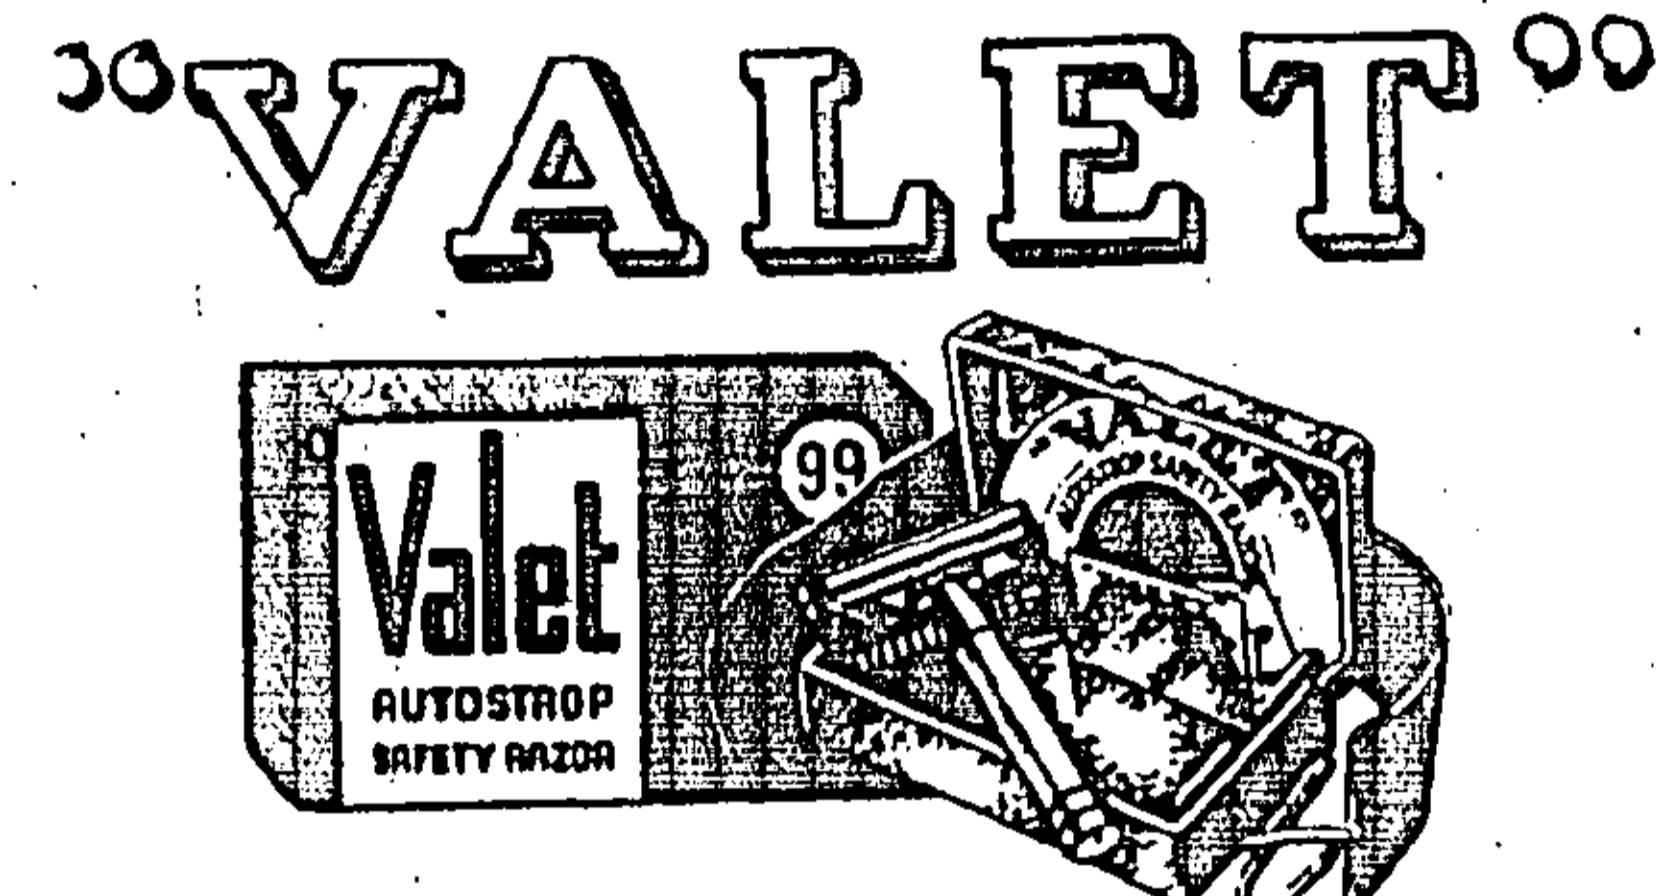

DURING the past few days I have been trying to picture what is going through the minds of those new men who somehow managed to get through the hell of the world war—as they look back on that great sacrifice and compare it with the world situation to-day. One of them said last week:

"Padre, I can only come to one conclusion—the world has gone stark mad. And I honestly feel that all the suffering, torture, and misery was useless."

We then got talking of those things which had forced him to that conclusion, and for well into the night our tongues wagged hotly and widely. We jumped from China to Mexico—then over to the Spanish daughter, quickly reaching the chaos of Palestine, and across to the riots of Jamaica, followed by concentration camps and Jewish persecution, the North-West, Frontier of India; back to China, the millions of United States unemployed, and the labour bureaux of England.

Perhaps you don't usually read articles by parsons. But this is something you can't ignore... a real challenge by a Padre.

Let men in high places and of high salaries banter, confer—send a thousand notes of apology, or warning.

Sooner or later the clash will come. Nothing can stop it—AND NOTHING MUST STOP IT, or else the whole world will become one universal, uncontrolled, mental asylum where each one lives as the prey of the other.

That "drunken devil" must be snatched out of that high-powered car before he brings destruction not only upon those around him, but also upon himself.

This seems to me to be the challenge before us to-day. And as they said in 1914, "They shall not pass," is the same cry, with the same determination, must rise up and save the situation to-day.

True, the odds are a million times greater to-day than then, but the world still has a nucleus of men and women of that same calibre who are ready to make the stand. Only this time it is going to be a ware of a vastly different technique; it is going to be a stand by right-thinking men and women for a right-thinking world—men and women no longer controlled or ordered by the military or political "brass hats" of the nations, but by God Himself.

This time it is not going to be the Sword that kills the body, but the Sword of the Spirit which will kill the evil in the hearts of men.

We know all too well that the technique of Whitehall, of Berlin, or of Washington, has lamentably failed us—the new army will only obey and use the technique of the Kingdom of Heaven.

The challenge will not be the challenge of guns, of gas and ships, but of the united forces of the Army of the Living God—men and women living on the basis of Absolute Honesty, Unselfishness, Purity and Love. For at last men and women are learning that these are the Real Forces in the world to bring insure men to their true senses. These are the only forces which will bring crashing to the ground the strongholds of greed, fear, immorality.

As we talked across my desk his eyes kept wandering to the corner of the study, to a large crucifix hanging on the wall. And suddenly he terminated the conversation and pointed to it and said: "And I wonder what He thinks about it all."

Somehow it seems to me we have just got ourselves into a hopeless mess. Our sense of values has gone; we have no sense of

For there can be no doubt, the day is rapidly approaching when we shall have to face the issue.

INTENSIFIED GERMAN FORTIFICATIONS

Stories Of Large Underground Hangars

London, Saturday. There is continued grave anxiety in Europe over Herr Hitler's mystery moves on the Rhine, where thousands of labourers are strengthening and extending fortifications, working day and night under military discipline. The tremendous demand for engineers and technicians for Rhineland fortifications and many new underground aerodromes is causing such a shortage elsewhere as to give a vivid impression of the scale of the new effort on France's frontier.

It is understood that General Guillemin's informal conversations with Marshal Goering and other leaders during the German air display which he attended were completely fruitless.

The response to a hint about a European air pact, and the outlawing of bombings of civilian populations, is reported to have discouraged the raising of the question in any serious form.

Field-Marshal Goering's proposals for doubling Germany's front line aeroplane strength have been approved by Hitler, according to information reaching here from Berlin.

There Is No Silly Season

-Says YAFFLE

WATCH that crying! It carries a message louder than words about a child's condition—the inner condition. Healthy children smile. Others will, when you give them CASTORIA, the ideal laxative. It's not only pleasant to take—children love its taste—but it's safe, gentle and effective in action. Because it's made especially for children, CASTORIA will not gripe, bind or jar their delicate systems like some adult laxatives.

When the younger members of the family are upset, nervous, show signs of catching a cold, are "bound-up" inside—GIVE THEM CASTORIA, the safe laxative. Keep a bottle on hand always in your home.

CASTORIA
THE CHILDREN'S LAXATIVE

"YES, I'LL SMILE
FOR CASTORIA!"

In millions of American homes CASTORIA is a steady guest, used for all children from babyhood to 11 years. It's a friend of the family because it contains no castor oil or harmful ingredients. Many doses in each bottle. Use as needed. It keeps.

THE other day Lord Lloyd paid a public tribute to the freedom and outspokenness of the British Press.

On behalf of the working staff I want to thank his lordship for his kind words. It is not often that anybody except newspapers praises the Press, and we seldom do it ourselves more than once a fortnight, even with the opportunities we have.

Some day, perhaps, I may tell you how a great newspaper is official monthly bulletin, "Caby depleted, and the burden of produced, if I can find anyone busy," the custom of seasonal work upon those who remain in who really knows. But, at the levity has ceased.

moment, I am concerned only to correct a certain popular fallacy.

Undue pressure of work.

There is a common belief that in the newspaper world this period of the year is known as the "Silly Season," when news is scarce and serious topics are avoided. This is no longer the case.

Nevertheless, though the appearance and tone of the paper is unchanged, the holiday period necessitates considerable alterations in the process of its production.

The custom still adheres in some quarters, I believe, such as

"The Observer," "The Times,"

"Sporting Life," and the "Fretworkers' Gazette." But with the more serious journals, such as

"Reynolds," the "Pig-Breeders'

"Argus," and a score of others less widely known, not to mention

those which are never read at all, including Shamean.

"You'd better do the women's page," said the news editor.

job remained unfilled till yesterday, when the young daughter of one of the compositors wandered by mistake into the sub-editor's room carrying her father's dinner, which, she said, he had forgotten. Misinterpreting the purpose of her visit, the news editor handed her a bundle of news-cuttings and a pot of paste, and pushed her into a chair. I regard her work very promising for a child of twelve.

The sub-editing of the news is being shared by office boys, junior typists, an unmarried reporter, and the fireman. The work is, you will agree, well up to standard. As regards the rest, I am still away, at play, and do not know who is writing this.

At this point you will ask, "Is the Editor away, and, if so, who is doing his work?"

An editor does not work. He

HUNGARIAN REGENT TAKES LEAVE OF HERR HITLER

GERMANY DENIES CZECH DEMARCHE

Berlin, Yesterday.
The German press gives up some of its front page space which, during the last three days, has been devoted entirely to the Horthy visit, to reports of an alarming character from Czechoslovakia.

Special prominence is given to the announcement of the Sudeten German Party that its members might see themselves compelled to have recourse to their right to self-defence.

Great stir has been caused here by a report published in a Prague evening newspaper alleging that Germany made last week a demarche in the capitals of several European countries.

The Prague newspaper maintains that the German Government, whilst stressing its will to peace, had no other choice than to use all means to get the Sudeten German demands accepted, if a solution of the Sudeten German question was deferred too long.

A sharp denial of this report of a German demarche is made by informed quarters. It is not disputed, however, that the representatives of the German Reich in the Foreign countries have taken the opportunity, by routine calls at Foreign Offices, to explain the German standpoint on the Czechoslovakian question.—Trans-Ocean.

Treasury Bills

London, Yesterday.
The total amount applied for in tenders for £40,000,000 in Treasury Bills was £37,605,000.

The average rate per cent for bills at three months was 10/1.53d. as against 10/1.51d. of a week ago. —British Wireless.

The Radical Socialists tried in vain to bring about a compromise between the two views.—Trans-Ocean.

Final Ceremonial Of State Visit

Berlin, Yesterday.
Admiral von Horthy, the Regent of Hungary and Madame von Horthy took leave of the Fuehrer yesterday afternoon and set out from the German capital in a special train for the Schorfheide where they made a brief visit in response to the invitation of Field-marshal Goering and Frau Goering. At the late hour yesterday evening they again embarked on a special train for Nuremberg, the first stage of their return journey.

After visiting Potsdam, the Regent and Madame von Horthy were entertained to lunch at the Charlottenburg Palace by the German Minister for Foreign Affairs.

From noon onwards the road leading to the Charlottenburg Palace was lined on either side by many thousands of Berliners who burst into enthusiastic cheering when shortly after three o'clock the cars containing the Fuehrer, the Hungarian Regent and Madame von Horthy drove up to the Palace entrance. Here the Fuehrer and his guest were received by the German Minister for Foreign Affairs and Frau von Ribbentrop.

FAREWELL LUNCHEON

Among those present at the luncheon were Dr. von Imredy, the Hungarian Premier, Dr. von Kanya, the Hungarian Minister, Dr. von Uray, Chief of the Cabinet of the Chancellery and General von Ratz, the Hungarian War Minister and nearly all members of the German Cabinet, as well as Admiral Raeder, Commander in Chief of the German Navy, General Keitel, Chief of the Supreme Command of the German Army and Herr Himmler.

Afterwards, the Hungarian guests, accompanied by the Fuehrer and his Cabinet Ministers, drove through barricaded streets to the Lehrter Station. The Regent and the Fuehrer first inspected the Guard of Honour lined up outside the station building. They then rejoined Madame von Horthy, who was accompanied by Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German Foreign Minister, and entered the Station. On the station platform the Fuehrer presented Madame von Horthy with a large bouquet. After exchanging a few words with the Fuehrer, Admiral von Horthy embarked on the train which started off punctually at 3.30 p.m.—Trans-Ocean.

DALADIER TO RECEIVE LEFT WING DELEGATION

Paris, Yesterday.
Friday's meeting of the Left Wing Committee of the Chamber, which took place immediately after the Social Democratic Faction had concluded its deliberations, failed to reach an agreement with regard to a convocation of the Chamber.

The position has, however, been clarified to the extent that the Radical Socialists have now agreed to send a delegation of the Left Wing Committee to M. Daladier.

The Premier has, in the meantime, signified his willingness to receive the Delegation.

Shortly before it called on the Premier, M. Crutel, Radical Socialist General Secretary to the Left Wing Committee, announced that the delegation would inform the Premier of their intention to demand a convocation of the Chamber unless assurances were forthcoming that the existing Labour Code would not be altered.—Trans-Ocean.

NEW POSTAL RATES

New postal rates to come into force on September 1, consequent upon the introduction of the all-up air mail were announced yesterday. The changes for Empire mails are important as for all British countries, possessions, mandated territories and protectorates served by air routes, the charge for letters will be 16 cents for each half ounce, and for postcards 10 cents each. This applies to all mails as no option of sending by the longer sea route is preserved.

For all other British possessions not served by air routes, the old rates of 16 cents for the first ounce and 10 cents for each additional ounce or part of an ounce remain in force.

ACTION AGAINST PROCESSION COLLECTORS

At the Central Magistracy before Mr. R. Edwards yesterday morning, a 32-year-old salaried, Chau Huen, was charged with unlawfully organising a procession without the permission of the Secretary of the Chinese Affairs and taking part in a collection without the permission of the Commissioner of Police.

Defendant said that he did not organise the procession, but just took part in it. The collection of the money was in aid of the War Refugees.

Sub-Inspector J. Fender prosecuting said that at about 9 p.m. on Friday night, he saw first defendant with about 15 boys walking along Des Voeux Road Central, holding flags and carrying boxes in their hands. He stopped them near the Post Office.

He asked first defendant if he was in charge of the boys, and Chau answered that he was.

Five shoe-blacks were also charged, with taking part in the collection.

First defendant was fined $20 on the first charge and $5 on the second, and the boys were fined $5 each.

MORE FINES IMPOSED

Two unlicensed hawkers, Cheung Kau, 26, and Kwong Ngau, 23, were fined $5 by Mr. R. Edwards when charged with taking part in the collection of money through the sale of vegetables for charitable or benevolent purposes without the permission in writing of the Commissioner of Police.

Sub-Inspector T. K. Whelan prosecuted.

Chau Tai Ngan-tai, 36, Lai Fuk, 52 and Chan Kam Mun, 41, boatmen, were fined $5 for a similar offence.

A 19-year-old widow, Cheng Wai Ying, was remanded for 72 hours, when charged with selling flowers for the refugee fund in D'Aguilar Street.

YUGO-SLAVIAN CABINET RE-ORGANISED

Belgrade, Yesterday.
Reconstruction of the Yugoslav Cabinet, in which Dr. Milan Stoyadinovic is Premier, has been completed.

The War Minister, General Ljubomir Maritch, the Minister for Commerce and Industry, Dr. Milan Verbanitch, and the Minister for Physical training, Dr. Miletitch retired. Their places have been taken by the following:

War, General Milutin Meditch, hitherto Chief of the General Staff, Industry and Commerce, Deputy Engineer Nikolaus Kubalin.

Physical Culture: Dr. Mirko Bultich, formerly Chief Burgomaster of Split.

SIXTH CHANGE

This reconstruction—the sixth since the existence of the Stoyadinovic Cabinet—has been contemplated for a long time, and, as stated by authoritative quarters, implies no change of general policy.

The retiring Ministers Maritch and Verbanitch both handed in their resignations a long time ago on grounds of ill-health, and Miletitch is to take over important functions in the Government Party.

No change in foreign policy is contemplated. It is said that General Maritch has enjoyed but weak support from the Army, where the new War Minister enjoys great esteem.

Since the two new Dalmatians in the Cabinet, Bulešan and Kabalina are Unitarians, the attempts to include members of the Matchek Party in the Government must be considered a failure. It is now, however, thought possible that the Croats will take a sharper course against Federalist efforts.—Trans-Ocean.

CRAIGENGOWER'S BOLD BID

Both Cricket Elevens Strengthened

E. A. Lee Expected To Make Comeback This Coming Season

A. Zimmern Likely To Keep For First Eleven

(By "ADREM")

FOR the duration of the now historic Fifth Test at the Oval, local cricketers were roused to a pitch of enthusiasm which only Test matches between England and Australia could provide. Until recent years, a Test match to us in the Colonies has never had the vividness that the radio has made of this series. While it may be satisfying to read in the papers a fairly full account of the play, it takes the fine descriptive powers of an expert cricket commentator to make the innings really live.

For that reason Hutton's batting during the week was not merely a matter of cold figures to hundreds of cricketers in Hong Kong. With but small powers of imagination they were able to visualise every stroke, every weakness and strength; they were able to share in narrow escapes, and thrill, as Hutton must have thrilled, to the roar of the crowd at one record after another.

I imagine that the foregoing is a trifle off the subject on which I sat down to write, but it serves as an illustration of the great influence the Oval Test has had on the minds of local cricketers.

On first thoughts, it might appear that our own season, rapidly approaching, will suffer from that influence. It does seem as if an anticlimax to think of our normally humdrum cricket after "living" the last week with some of the most striking personalities of this or any other era in the history of cricket.

But there are other psychological aspects to consider. Local conditions of play are hardly conducive to spectacular feats either with the bat or the ball, but I have little doubt that in the minds of some of the more youthful of Hong Kong's cricketers live desires to emulate such supermen as Hutton and crack or set local records that would cause as big a flutter here as Hutton's feats have caused throughout the world.

Two League Games?

ALTHOUGH the local season does not really get under way until October, it is at about this time every year that annual meetings are held and various administrative details arranged.

A week or two latter than usual, the annual meeting of the Cricket League, I learn on good authority, will be held either this week or next.

Normally this meeting is just a formal affair, but, I understand, several items of an interesting character are likely to be brought up this year.

One—by no means new, but revolutionary in some respects—is a home and away League matches. This subject has been brought up at regular intervals over a long period and, although it has had a certain amount of support, it has also been strongly opposed.

Bright C.C.C. Hopes

IF they are not going to be materially strengthened this season, neither Indian Recreation Club nor Craigengower Cricket Club will be any the weaker.

Craigengower are going to be unfortunate in that they will be unable during the winter. Although I saw it reported that he was to leave for England, I know that he is still in the Colony. It is to be hoped for Craigengower's sake that he does not go away as he was one of their most successful bats last season.

The following players are likely to be available: E. Zimmern, F. R. Zimmern, A. Zimmern, A. R. H. Esmail, A. B. Hanson, W. Hong Sling, F. R. Lee, E. A. Lee, G. Souza, A. T. Lee, P. J. Billimoria, D. WE DIG OUR GRAVES WITH OUR TEETH

The very food you eat either develops or destroys you. What you eat, how much you eat, when and how, is recording every day, every night whether you are climbing up or digging down. Millions of people are digging down, deeper and deeper, into their graves.

Why? Because the things we eat, the things we drink are continually creating acid poisons in the system. When this acid becomes excessive, we get stomach distresses, dangerous acid indigestion, sour stomach, wind, colds, headaches, neuralgia or rheumatism.

It is dangerous to neglect this situation. What you need at once is to ease the pain and neutralise this excess acidity.

Alka-Seltzer

is the only remedy of its kind that does exactly those two things—two results accomplished at once and at the same time.

Dissolve one or two tablets of ALKA-SELTZER in a glass of water and drink it. Your pain will cease and your relief from distress will be amazingly quick and refreshing. Then in case you make the error of over-eating or over-drinking, ALKA-SELTZER will always come to your rescue. Try it today. It is guaranteed to set you off.

Alka-Seltzer is not a laxative. You can take it as often as you like, without inconvenience.

Kowloon Football Club Face Season With Great Optimism

But Three Stars Will Be Badly Missed

FINCHER AND REMEDIOS WILL BE EXTENDED

The Colony Hardcourt Tennis Championships, under the auspices of the United Services Recreation Club, will commence to-morrow, weather permitting, when several interesting matches should be witnessed.

The double header between E. C. Fincher and A. V. Remedios and Paul Kong and Temile Kyoko, which the former pair are favoured to win, will be only by a slight margin.

The following are to-morrow's fixtures:

Court No. 11.—Weng Fook-nam v. Major F. T. Barnes.

Court No. 12.—S. A. Gray v. Major L. A. Newnham.

Court No. 17.—E. C. Fincher and A. V. Remedios v. Paul Kong and Temile Kyoko.

Court No. 18.—I. Agafuroff and J. Pengelly v. K. C. S. Allin and J. R. Jenkins.

Court No. 19.—Pang Ol-lam and Mok Fuk-hi v. H. W. Lee and S. W. Liang.

Umpires must be found by the first-named player or pair in each match, who will also be responsible for handing in the result to the member of the U.S.R.C. Tennis Committee on duty.

If matches scheduled for any day have to be postponed, owing to the weather, they will be played on the first following day which is fit for play and schedules for succeeding days will be altered accordingly.

Play must commence each day at 6.15 p.m. sharp.

POLICE LOSE GOUGH BUT HAVE BLACKBURN AND JOHNSON AGAIN

The Police will have the majority of their players available for this football season and hope to fare much better if duties do not interfere too much with the team.

The Police team are beset with certain difficulties which are foreign to other soccer teams. Often players have to play a match after having done several hours of street or bench duty, and consequently they cannot give of their best on the field. Added to this, the players are generally at different stations and on different duties with the result that they are seldom able to practice together or work up the greatly needed combination.

But, in spite of these handicaps, the Police have often been able to give the best teams in the League a good game and have often provided surprises.

With the exception of Gough, their pivot, who is on Home leave, the Police will have all of last season's team available and will be strengthened by the return of Blackburn and Johnson, who are due back from leave shortly.

Manning and McHardy are the goal-keepers. The former is due for leave shortly and so McHardy, who did not play last season, will again be seen between the sticks.

Bone and Blackburn will be the two backs. Bone improved beyond recognition last season at full back, although he has played for several seasons at forward.

BRITAIN AT HELM

Britain, the captain and one of the oldest active footballers in the Co-

Youthful Signals' Team Should Make Presence Felt

Royal Corps of Signals are fielding a very young team in the Third Division of the local Football League this season, but hope to finish somewhere near the top.

The present team has already had several practice matches, and under L/Cpl. Dove, their energetic Hon. Secretary, they are fast becoming a formidable side.

Sgt. Parry, centre-half and captain of the team, makes an ideal leader. He has excellent control of his players and is best suited to the key position of the team, being an untrusting, spoiler and sound defender.

The Signals are at the moment without a goalkeeper, but hope to fill this position soon. Sgt. Spinks, although only a youngster, will fill the right-back position and should be in the running for the Junior Interport position. A fine positional player and very cool under heavy pressure, he is ideally suited to the rearguard. His colleague for the left-back position has not yet been found.

Diggin, well-known for his water-polo activities, will support Parry at right-half. He is fast progressing as a sound feeder and may even secure Army recognition this season.

Hutchinson fills the left-half berth and should fit in well with the line. Parsons, who is another youngster, will probably be seen on the right-wing, where his speed on the ball and accuracy in control makes him another potential junior Interporter.

Garfield should be a menace to other teams. A hard-worker with sound ball control and a record of six goals in four matches to date. The inside-left berth is at present vacant.

DEFENCE SHOULD OFFER REAL OPPPOSITION

KOWLOON Football Club, who enjoyed a very good season in the First Division of the local Football League last year, are looking forward very optimistically to another good year, although several changes in their line-up will be made.

The loss of Rowlands, from the goalkeeping position, is a big blow, while Evans, the Colony Interport player, who filled their left-half and sometimes their inside-right berth, will also be sorely missed.

Another serious blow is that Donald Knox, their youthful centre-forward and left-winger, will probably not be playing this season, acting on medical advice.

R.A.O.C. SHOULD HOLD THEIR OWN IN 2ND DIVISION

Although the Royal Army Ordnance Corps figured in the Second Division of the local Football League three or four years ago, when they fielded a combined R.A.O.C.-R.A.S.C. team, this season will see them make their debut as a single unit in the Second Division.

Should last season's form be maintained—they were runners-up to Kwong Wah in the Junior Shield competition—they should more than hold their own in the opening stages of the season.

The forthcoming trooping season, however, will leave several gaps in their ranks and as they have only about 15 playing members all told, they may experience some difficulty during November or December.

Their most difficult position to fill will be left-half, which will be vacated by Fisher-Cooke, a young player who has already established himself as one of the finest intermediates in the Colony and who appeared in several representative games last season.

Mooney (goalkeeper), Attas (inside-left) and Scadding (inside-left) will also be available this season for England during the trooping season.

At the moment either Wadler or Gill, two promising custodians, may appear between the sticks, but the question of filling the remaining and all-important intermediate positions will not be definitely decided until the new talent arriving by the trooping ship are given a trial.

Munton will again lead the attack and will be supported by Duffield and Emberson, as inside-right and inside-left respectively, while Lang will fill the right-wing berth.

There is one remaining berth in the intermediate line, at right-half, which will probably be filled by Rides, while Vaughnaux and Humphreys will present a bold rear-guard.

The promotion of the Ordnance Corps from the Third to the Second Division this season is well merited.

R.A.S.C. STRIPPED OF TALENT

Royal Army Service Corps, who are again entering in the Third Division of the local Football League, are facing something of a problem in the formation of their team.

Most of last season's players will be leaving for Home during the trooping season.

Smith, who has performed so well for the Corps between the sticks, may be leaving during the early part of the season, but his successor will easily be found as several recent transfers from other units include Hartley, who played for Midlanders in the First Division last season.

Roxborough, McNeill, Eddy, Hughes and Hodgkinson will not be available after the first month of soccer, but Bell, Havercroft and Hammond are again available.

The remainder of the team will consist of whatever fresh talent arrives from Home.

AIR FORCE NOW TEAM BUILDING

Royal Air Force, who did well in the Third Division last season, are now in the progress of team-building as they have already lost several of last season's players and will be losing more by the next trooping ship, among whom are Elton, Kennedy and Hillyer.

The Air Force finished third in the Kowloon Section of the Third Division last season, but created a surprise when they held a strong Portuguese Sporting Association team to a draw in the Third Round of the Junior Shield.

The Air Force had a trial game recently against the 24th Battery, Royal Artillery, and lost by the odd goal in three, but several of the new players showed up very promisingly, and the committee are hoping that new talent will arrive by the next relief.

The Air Force have not had much opportunity of moulding their team yet and will not know their line-up for the opening game for some time to come.

The following are some of the players who will be seen in action this season:—Garrett and Donnelly (goal-keepers), Goodwin, Edmunds (captain), and Henley (backs), Dawson, Hollahan (vice-captain), MacGillivray, Littlebank, Broon, Elton, Kennedy and Hillyer (forwards).

EASTERN DEFEAT KOWLOON FOOTBALL CLUB LOSE TO DOCKS

THOUGH the Lawn Bowls League has been concluded, four friendly matches were played yesterday, most interesting of which was that between Kowloon Football Club, Third Division Champions, and Kowloon Dock, a First Division side, the latter winning a 5-rink encounter by 27 shots.

Sixes were recorded by R. Craig, who beat T. Ferguson by 17 shots; V. C. Chittenden, who beat S. Gray by 9 shots after leading 10-4 at the 10th end; A. E. Contes, who tied with E. W. Simmonds after being 27-18 down at the 17th end, and then scoring 6, 5 and 0; A. F. Paul, who beat J. A. R. Selby by 16 shots; and V. Walker, who beat J. Sloan by 21 shots—Sloan scored at only five ends.

U. M. Omar and W. K. Way both owed their wins to an extra end. Way beating J. F. McGowan in the result of a single at the 22nd, and Omar beating G. C. Moss by a brace at the 22nd.

A. 3, 1 and 1 at the last three ends enabled A. Brookbank to tie with W. H. B. Mackell.

B. W. Bradbury, leading G. H. Sheriff 15-14 at the 17th end, finished up with 1, 6, 5 and 2 to win by 14 shots.

KOWLOON DOCK UP

At Chatham Road, Kowloon Football Club, Third Division Champions, did well to hold Kowloon Dock, a First Division team, to the narrow margin of 27 shots, in a five-rink game.

SCOTS 6-2 IN SEASON'S FIRST SOCCER GAME Will Prove Serious Challengers For Premier Honours

SOLDIERS' ATTACK FAILS BADLY: TOO FEW SHOTS AT GOAL SUEN'S SCHEMER ROLE

FOOTBALL is here again, despite the hot weather we are now experiencing.

Playing with only 10 men throughout the second half as a result of an injury to Sammy Tsang, their goalkeeper, Eastern Athletic Association yesterday afternoon defeated Royal Scots by 6 goals to 2 before a fairly large crowd in their charity match in aid of Chinese war refugees, on the Club ground.

The Royal Scots, fielding an experimental team, their best available at the moment, left many loopholes in their defence and were repeatedly beaten by ground passes down the centre, while their halves dilly-dallied with the ball to such an extent that Duncan, the Regimental custodian, and the two backs were given a very anxious time.

SAMMY TSANG INJURED

Duncan showed excellent form between the sticks and made several magnificent full-length saves from "Darky" Lee and Au Shihngok, but was never given a chance whenever the Chinese penetrated the penalty area, where their shooting and short passing were very near perfect.

Fraser, the Scots' right-back, cleared first-time, but he had the more difficult task of the two backs as he had to contend with a very dangerous left-wing pair in "Darky" Lee and Au Ching-to, the former being particularly dangerous when in possession. Barron, filling the left-back position, gave a blip display but often endangered his charge by passing back across the goalmouth. His first-time clearances, in the earlier stages of the game, however, were very neat.

Proctor, the left-half, was the pick of the intermediate line and wasted little time in sending the ball up to either his wing or inside-left, while Falconer, at centre-half, worked very hard, but had little control over his short ground passes and they inevitably went astray. Pluckrose, the right-half, was the one weak link in the Scots' half-back line. In the second half he was a very tired man. True, he won up against Lee and Au Ching-to, but he wasted many opportunities of distributing the ball by aimless wandering.

WEAK ATTACK

Where the Scots really failed badly was in attack, where precious seconds were thrown away by ridiculous passes in the very goalmouth instead of essaying a shot. It was only in the latter stages of the game that they realised their error and obtained their second goal.

Munro and McKay, their right and left-wingers respectively, only came into the picture after the game had been in progress for 20 minutes. Their first efforts to centre the ball were invariably bungled by attempts to penetrate the Eastern full-back division, but they soon mended their ways and were then probably the most dangerous of the Scots' forwards.

Selkirk, on the part of Hossack in the first half, was probably responsible for the Scots' losing three or four opportunities of netting. He would persist in trying to beat two men with his inside-forwards were well positioned for a shot. In the second half he changed positions with Allan, his inside-left, and improved on his earlier performance, scoring the Scots' second goal.

The Scots' inside-forwards tried hard but found the opposing wing-halves more than a match for them and were frequently drawn out of position.

Eastern have a very fine team in the making and, with Suen Kam-suen making a welcome reappearance centre-forward, they will constitute a real menace for First Division League honours.

EASTERN'S TWO CHANGES

Yesterday they made several changes from their advertised team, the Samson Tsang coming in between the lines instead of Tsui Hong, while Au Shihngok displaced J. Tsui Man at inside-right. Chau Man-chi was an absentee from "Darky" Lee's team in the birth at inside-left.

It was fairly obvious from yesterday's game that Eastern were by no means fully extended and could have doubled their score had they tried hard enough. Tsang was fairly reliable between the sticks, but early in the second half was badly charged by an opposing forward and sustained a fractured rib. He took no further part in the game.

Tsang Chung-wan, the right-back, was fairly reliable in the opening half, but was guilty of dangerous tackling towards the close of the opening half. Kwok

Kwong Wah Promotion Well Deserved

The history of the Kwong Wah football team since its formation three seasons ago is one of steady progress, and its admission into the First Division is the just reward of the enthusiasm and training of the team during the past two years.

Kwong Wah joined the Third Division in 1936 and after a poor start finished third, but in the following year, due to the withdrawal from the Second Division of the Royal Navy, Royal Welsh Fusiliers and Royal Ulster Rifles, they volunteered to fill one of the gaps and their offer was accepted by the Association. Several of the members of the staff, who had previously been playing members of other clubs, then threw their lot in with the Company team with the result that they finished third in the Second Division and won the Junior Shield.

Their application for promotion this season was accepted without question for two good reasons, firstly owing to a shortage of First Division teams, but especially by virtue of their showing on the football field during the past seasons. They are the first club in recent years to be admitted to the Senior League after having won a junior competition.

ONLY ONE CHANGE

With the exception of L. A. Rocha, whose place will be taken by Cheuk Shek-kam, former South China "B" team player who went to Europe with the All-China soccer team in 1936, the team will be unchanged from last season.

Li Kwoh-ki will again be seen in the goalkeeper's position, with Chang Fu-lun, former South China "B" player, and Ho Yung-sang, an excellent right-half, will again be seen in the right-half position, with Chang Wing-yeung and Wong Wah-kei or Henry Young as the wing-halves. Both the last-named players were members of South China "B" team for two seasons, though the former was playing in goal.

WONG PROMOTED

The forward line will be composed of Leung Bing-kam and Wong King-cheung, as right and left-wings respectively. The latter, who started with South China last season in the junior team, was earmarked for promotion and improved greatly last season.

Chin Chi-fai will lead the attack and will have Lai Wing-ku, the most dangerous of the forward line, and Cheuk Shek-kam as his inside-forwards.

The Kwong Wah juniors should also do well. They have several players who were regular members of the senior team during the early part of last season, and under the captaincy of Tiller, former Kowloon Football Club player, they are expected to develop into a good side.

WESTINGHOUSE GETS THE LARGEST SINGLE ORDER EVER PLACED FOR REFRIGERATORS

Based on first cost of ownership of current equipment for 10 years.

PUBLIC WORKS ADMINISTRATION HOUSING DIVISION BUYS WESTINGHOUSE REFRIGERATORS TO MEET HIGH ECONOMY REQUIREMENTS IN LOW-RENT HOUSING

To provide modern, safe food-keeping facilities at lowest cost in 24 low-rent housing projects in 20 cities, the Housing Division of the U.S. Public Works Administration last in 1936 called for bids from leading refrigerator manufacturers. Bids were based on initial price added to cost of electricity for ten years. Westinghouse won, though four other manufacturers quoted lower unit prices. Low current consumption made possible by Westinghouse features, convinced Government buyers that on a 10-year basis, it costs less to own a Westinghouse.

Time steps back

A 15-year-old office boy wrote this SHORT STORY

"Mumbling something about not stopping to wrap it up, I fled from the shop."

An extract from the New World Psychological Review of March 20, 1938:

"The following letter was found among other old manuscripts in the antique shop of Marcus Leiber, and may serve to enlighten the least sceptical of our readers regarding the curious occurrence of the publication of books by certain authors which had been written and published years ago by an author who is long dead . . .

"Expensive!" I gasped.

"Oh, yes, it is, but it's very vulnerable, you know. Of course, we have some cheaper, if you would like to see them."

This was beyond me. I looked at the man in amazement, and finally banged down half a crowd on the table, and mumbled:

"That is two and sixpence. It is rather expensive, but it was un-written by the late John Chipping forty years ago."

"Expensive!" I gasped.

"Why, his works are regarded as classics! He was only and sure enough they were written in 1930, you know."

"What! 1970?"

"Why, yes. He died at the age of twenty-five. Was it an hallucination? Had I said case. He overstepped the bounds of genius and developed the manuscripts and books in a form of homicidal mania. He my hand. Full of a strange fear, I hurried away.

I was just beginning to feel apprehensive when my eye formation about the composers caught sight of a medley of and authors whose works I had manuscripts and sheet music bought. I could not. By definition, they were dated years ahead. Either he was crazy or I was, had not yet been born because I thought I'd better get out of stronger. I could not resist the temptation to go down the shop quickly.

For a few shillings I bought Haymarket every day, but all I spent days trying to find a selection of music and books saw was the hoarding, except I dropped my gloves outside the nine. Just for one hour a week cover until I was just about to ing something about not troubling to wrap it up, I fled from the shop.

How I attained that success you will learn in due course, just as surely as you will learn the reason why, as soon as I drop this letter into the post box at the end of the road, I shall fall a victim to my hereditary cardiac weakness, and that an hour later my body, devoid of life, will be found lying at the foot of the box.

I must tell you that I am nothing but a common thief, using other men's brains and talent.

Yet I have achieved world-wide success, even though my methods are a little unorthodox. Though I say it myself I know that I am regarded as the greatest literary and musical genius of the age. When I tell you of nineteenth century literature, that I cannot write one word of original prose that is worthy of publication or that I cannot compose one single note of music world-wide recognition, but I am determined to read more of his works.

I did not trouble to read the manuscript until three days later.

From the very first line I was fascinated. The story held me in its endless enchantment. It was so fresh, so new, so different in treatment and style. Not in the least like one's expectations of the age. When I tell you of nineteenth century literature, that I cannot write one word of original prose that is worthy of publication or that I cannot compose one single note of music world-wide recognition, but I am determined to read more of his works.

Consequently the next day I found me inquiring for his books at the public library, but I was met with a blank stare. The attendant had never heard of such an author. Try as I might — and I did try — I could not find any person who had ever heard of the man, or any trace of his head up. It was during this period that I came across the shop which changed my life.

It was on a Saturday evening at about eight o'clock.

I was wandering down the Haymarket, buried deep in disappointment I found that a thought, when my eye was caught by a brilliantly lit shop across the frontage of the shop, on the right-hand side. I had never seen it before.

Everybody seemed to be ignoring the shop. No one stopped and looked in its windows.

ONE THING & ANOTHER

A Daily paper is conducting a correspondence on the subject—"Do Witches Still Exist?"

In our village this controversy centres round speculation as to the precise nature and origin of Mrs. Honoria Bombazine, secretary of the local branch of the League of Empire Mothers.

It is alleged that she holds her weekly meetings in the village hall, which, as you know, is opposite the Duck and Wensel, the beer tastes funny.

Many things are going on in the world, and it is in the honest endeavour of this journal to present them to you clearly and truthfully. But, within these walls, only one question really agitates the staff:

Who will be Linotype Queen?

Miss Gurbling is too fat; Miss Govke is too thin. Mrs. Ehinny-boy says she does not want to.

So there will probably be a day at Southend instead.

OFFICIAL SECRETS

It is officially denied that Miss Ouida Snook (née Haddock), who is now in London, has been arrested under the the Official Secrets

Act, though it is admitted that she was held for 24 hours.

But what woman minds that?

It is believed in some quarters that she was really responsible for the Official Secrets Act, because certain officials couldn't keep her secret any longer.

Her activities since she has been in London lend colour to this theory. Nobody knows what colour, but there is undoubtedly some purpose in it.

Anyway, the fact remains that last week she was the guest of honour at the Spy Ring luncheon at the Savoy; but after a bit they just called her "guest" and crooked out the "of honour."

It was a most successful function, except that the chairman choked to death when his false beard fell off in the soup.

Non-nor-Intervention

Col. Gore-Nodde-Gore, who has gone to Spain to see if he can withdraw a volunteer. He always wears a lightning conductor on his hat as a precaution against bombing planes. During spring his pet sparrow builds a nest in it.

whole object of this article, he hit the cute little lad over the head with the pickhandle and turned to an old gent with a travelling rug over his legs.

"Off at last?" smiled our representative.

"No, I forgot to put 'em on," groaned the old gent, tucking the rug tighter around his legs.

Many smart frocks were seen yesterday.

I saw Miss Flora Flatiron on her way to lunch in a smart one-piece of crepe de faux pas trimmed with gussets of eau de quinine.

"I love my lunch," she confided to our woman reporter, "especially those little green berries with pits in."

"Oliver," murmured our woman. "No, mine," replied Miss Flatiron, as she hurried off to make final arrangements for the cocktail party she is giving.

PAST FUTURE

We still don't know what is going to happen in Europe. Our crystal-gazer, Mrs. Forsooth, returned yesterday, but she didn't tell us anything. At least, nothing we can print.

She brought along a special crystal which she said she wanted to try. So we let her and she sat gazing into it for a couple of hours. Finally we said, "Well, what can you see?"

"A house in Paris," she murmured, and sat gazing for another hour licking her lips.

"Tell us what is going to happen?" we muttered at last.

"I don't know; they've just pulled down the blind," grumbled Mrs. Forsooth, saying which the scene ended.

"I take the liberty of giving you the reasoning back of the numbered bids.

"1. A jump raise to an opening two bid, denoting no high card holding above a queen, at least four to the queen of partner's suit, and no blank suit or singleton in the hand.

"2. An asking bid, since hearts have been definitely agreed upon.

"3. Since my jump raise denoted no singleton or king, North cannot be asking for second round control and, therefore, must want to know about third spade control, hence my four no trump answer, showing third round spade control.

"4. This, of course, was just a trap for the opponents. North wanted to start them doubling right up to the finish.

"5. Not knowing what is going on, but holding third round club control, I answered conventionally.

"6. The grand slam must be a laydown, since we have eleven cards between us and I can take care of North's losing spades.

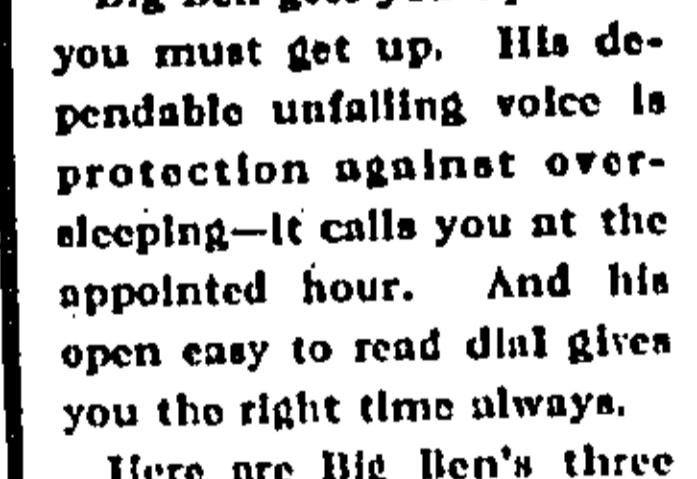

"7. The double having materialised as hoped for, North now comes down with the big attack.

"It is a shame that one of the most picturesque and colouring parts of the game, the employment of asking bids, has not been taken up more generally. Believe me, in many a big hand asking bids are the only insurance policy that one can get."

There is no doubt but that the hand was well bid, even to the extent of coaxing a double from the opponents. Although, as I have announced, asking bids have been removed from the basic structure of the Culbertson system to a special appendix, I say again what I have said so often, that partnerships interested in getting the last ounce out of their cards with safety should study and use this invaluable slam bidding device.

Big Ben gets you up when you must get up. His dependable unfailing voice is protection against oversleeping—it calls you at the appointed hour. And his open easy to read dial gives you the right time always.

Here are Big Ben's three features—dependability, precision construction and dustproof case—only Big Ben has all these and many other advantages not found in other clocks.

The light sleeper prefers the quiet tick and two voice alarm of Big Ben Chime Alarm. Deep sleepers will want Big Ben Loud Alarm. All good stores carry Big Ben and many other Westclox alarm clocks and watches.

Even though I could scarcely credit it I had either to believe that the shop, by some force unknown to mankind, was transported from some future date into the past (my present) or that I was out of my mind. I preferred to accept the former theory, however, ludicrous it might sound.

On July 5 a sudden idea took complete possession of my mind. In a way it was criminal, but it was crime within the law. If I argued, these books had not yet been written, why should I not submit them to publishers as my own work? You know that I did; that I am now regarded as the most versatile of literary giants, and also the world's greatest composer.

Every Saturday for the next few years I visited this phantom shop, taking no notice of its more solid stock, but buying all its music and manuscripts as they came in.

This went on until June 1943, during which time I amassed a great fortune. Then came the worst shock of all. I was paying my usual visit to the shop and fumbling over old manuscripts when I came across . . . my own signature! Yes, stuck at the end of this letter. I stood quite still, frozen with a strange terror.

At home I felt an irresistible impulse to write it again.

I go to the welcome release of death.

Ever yours,
MICHAEL CHAMBERS.

FRENCH AIR FORCE DISASTER

Paris, Yesterday.

A military plane which started from the Pau Air Base on a trial flight crashed between the villages of Monast and Maserolles, to-night.

The machine caught fire on striking the ground and the four occupants of the plane were burnt to death.

The cause of the accident still is undetermined. It is believed, however, that the plane's pilot lost his direction owing to the dense fog which prevailed at the time of the accident.—Trans-Ocean.

POLISH STRATOSPHERE ASCENT PLANS

Warsaw, Yesterday.

Feverish preparations are being made in Poland for flights of a stratosphere balloon which are planned to take place in the latter half of September, according to a report this morning.

It is intended to make three flights in all the first of which will start from the Chochohowska Valley, near Zakopane.

Not only will an attempt be made by the intrepid balloonists to break the existing height record of 22,000 metres, established by the American Stevens, but also, and more particularly, scientific research will be conducted in the matter of cosmic rays and on other problems of the stratosphere.

There were no joined communication-trenches to be seen but the Chinese commanders explained that there was no great need of them owing to the cover provided by the thick foliage all around.

While remaining quiet all day, Chinese raiding parties go out at night in order to harrass the Japanese.

GOOD POSITIONS

They will not attempt to drive back the Japanese. As a French-educated Divisional General explained in an interview: "We have good positions here. If we make attempts to drive back the enemy we might again return within range of the Japanese warships on the Yangtze."

We prefer therefore to hold our present positions, while making night raids now and then to wipe out a few hundred more Japanese each time."

Reuters correspondent witnessed one such night raid. The general in charge led him at midnight, stumbling on a rocky overgrown slope to within 100 yards of a Chinese battery of "75's".

NIGHT BOMBARDMENT

As a preliminary bombardment began, flashes from the guns lit up the landscape around while shells whined away into the distance exploding like pinpoints on the horizon.

The Japanese guns quickly aroused the general commotion, began to reply, their shells bursting in the woods ahead.

At intervals the voices of the gunners could plainly be heard as firing momentarily ceased, so quiet was the night.

Finally the artillery bombardment ceased and shortly afterwards mysterious lights could be seen dancing amidst the woods in the dense silence.

Then suddenly a shower of red

JAPANESE ATTACK SOUTHWARD AT STANDSTILL

Nanchang, Yesterday.

The Japanese drive against Hankow which is now gathering momentum appears to be concentrating upon a more or less direct advance along the north and south banks of the Yangtze.

The result is that the attack southwards in the direction of Nanchang, where the Japanese have recently been making feelers, has been brought to a standstill, temporarily at least.

When Reuter's correspondent visited the frontline defences in the hills of this area and the valley beyond, the Chinese lines which had once been a major battlefield, had been reconverted into an outwardly peaceful area.

lights went up.
Our men have signalled their positions," declared the General.FORCES CLASH

Again there was dead silence until about an hour later when the opposing forces met one another.

Heavy machine-gun fire then broke out, lasting for two hours, interspersed with the faint reports of the hand grenades.

Then all was quiet again and quiet for the rest of the night.

In the early morning the General informed me that the raid had been attended with its usual success. "We inflicted about 100 casualties on the Japanese and lost 20 men."—Reuter.

The Secret of Success!

The reflex image of the Rolleicord is a direct negative, frame-finder and contact-finder camera. It has a built-in photo guide, an image on the ground glass screen points out to you the actual merit of a picture and prevents you from wasting your film.

The finder-lens is of wider aperture than the taking-lens and thus gives you considerable latitude. Your exposures will invariably prove sharp and suitable for enlargement even if the focusing did not happen to be dead accurate.

This explains the wonderful success achieved by Rolleicord Amateurs.

By "Lens-Hood"

LET me get it off my chest—the joke I promised last week. In her reminiscences Lady Rhondda reveals the experience of a young clergyman who spent his holidays at a somewhat select seaside resort. One day he went for a bathe, then leaving his clothes and camera on a sand dune, plunged into the sea. Some ten minutes later two charming young ladies whose sense of humour was greater than their morals, came across his camera, then posing for each other, took two pictures of the type which photographers know as nude studies. Then carefully replacing the camera, they departed as silently as the proverbial Arab. The feelings of the young curate when he saw his film developed and printed may be better imagined than described!

not worth looking at, and technical faults are completely absent. One point I would like to emphasise is that the coupon on this page should be sent in with every entry, not every picture; an entry may comprise as many pictures as you like. A coupon does not represent an ingenious method of increasing the paper's circulation. It is merely that the enclosure of it with your pictures gives reason to believe that you are a bona fide reader of the "Sunday Herald."

Mr. Connor's print has a splendid rendering of texture; in the original the leather can almost be felt.

The subject of next month's competition is "Landscapes." Send in your prints as early as possible. A coupon from this, or a back number may be used.

"LENS-HOOD."

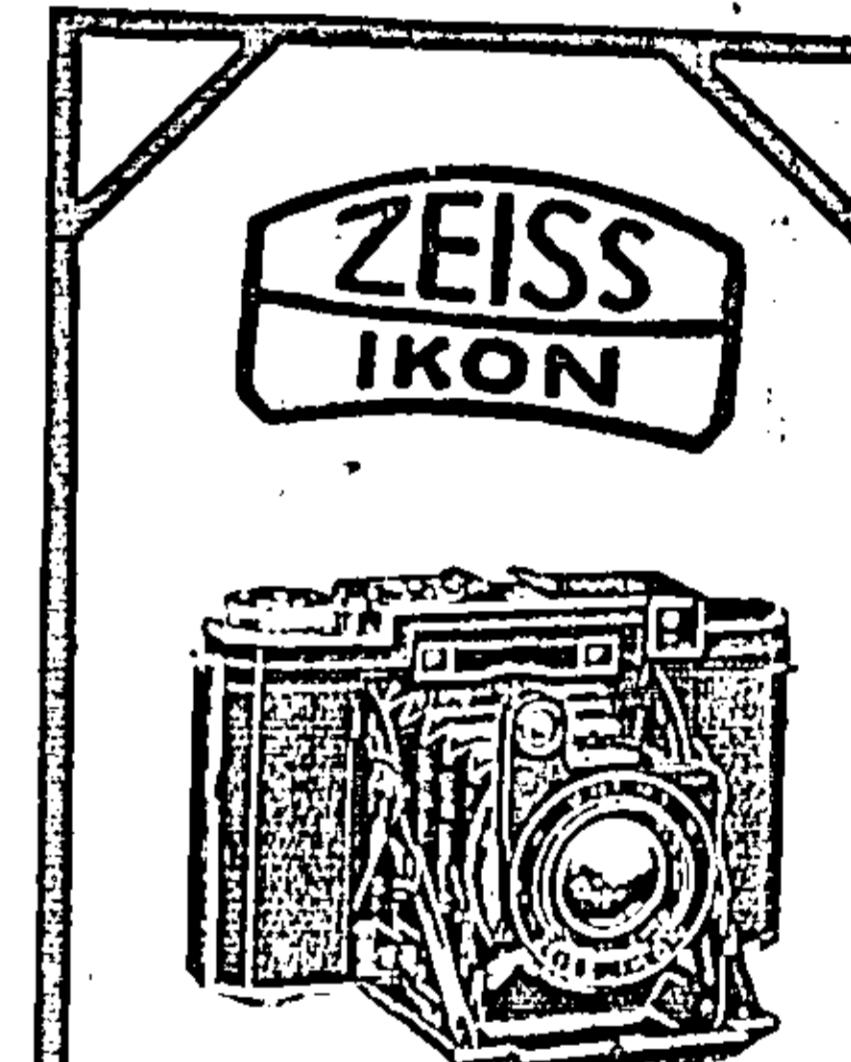

"The Cobbler" by F. Connor.

Mr. Stoker's print has a good element of simplicity about it and the shadows are well disposed. Personally I would be inclined to trim a little off the left side of the picture, but that is merely a question of taste.

Both Mr. Yuen's and Mr. Gaskin's prints are notable for their rich blacks and the back lighting and shadows play an important part in the picture.

Mr. Lu's picture is another effective street study but an improvement would have been made if a wider lens opening had been used. This would have the effect of throwing the figures in the background out of focus and so subduing their interest. Don't be content with one aperture all the time but always consider your lens stop and the resultant

"Beauty Is But Skin Deep"

THANKS for the tip Mr. X, we shall take care of the skin then, if that is your idea of beauty. We do not care to know what you are driving at when you say, "Beauty is but Skin Deep", but we shall take it literally and draw our own conclusions. The saying is old, older than the History of Make-Up, when Creams and Cosmetics were unknown, when to suggest such a thing as "I expect he's constipated. Show me your tongue, Johnnie. Yes, I thought so. See how it's coated. Your head aches, too, doesn't it Johnnie, and you feel poorly? Sure signs that he's out of sorts.

"That's the trouble, Mrs. Wilson, his system wants a thorough cleansing. Give him a dose of 'California Syrup of Figs' now and he'll be as happy as a lark in a few hours. It's difficult to keep them regular—when they're young they get lazy about it and are soon upset. But you can avoid all that by giving Johnnie a dose of 'California Syrup of Figs' regularly every Saturday night. It'll keep him fit and save you a world of sickness and worry.

"Safe? You couldn't have anything safer! It's a natural fruity laxative, and acts naturally on the bowels. That's why so many doctors recommend it, and give it to their own children.

"Let Johnnie go to the drug store for a bottle now. And let Johnnie be sure to say 'California Syrup of Figs' when there will be no mistake.

"You can't afford to take chances with medicines, particularly with the children. No matter whether it is for myself or a patient, I always insist on the best that money can buy."

"Face-Lifting" would have meant to be called a fanatic and a fool, when a beautiful face was allowed to bear the ravages of cruel Nature until the facial skin resembled the crust of stale bread. But, now, we are afraid that this most instructive saying has lost its proverbial value in this Max Factorian Age. What was good enough for the grandma is not good enough for the Modern Girl. No doubt the great Naturalists would say that it was once natural to let Nature take its own course, but then it was once also natural to swing by our tails in the trees. I do not mean for a moment that you should violate the laws of Nature, far from it, I only mean to assert that you should not entirely depend upon Nature or Nature will let you down.

BY
MAMAK

Skin preservation is the first law of Beauty, and should be strictly adhered to. Human skin, specially that of the fair sex, is extremely delicate and easily destroyed, if neglected. Even the slightest thing will leave its stamp on your face.

First of all observe the simple rules of Health—Keep your mind clean, avoid over-eating and cocktail parties, take lots of fresh air, take part in outdoor sports as much as your time allows you, do not keep too many late nights—a sound sleep is as essential for the preservation of Beauty as any Beauty Cream.

After giving all that is due to Nature, take the aid of science and protect your skin against the ravages of an entire day.

Following the treatment of the forehead, a bit of the tissue cream may be applied to the upper and the lower eyelids. Here the rule against rubbing may be discarded, but only to a very minor degree. Rubbing must be done very gently and with a circular outward motion, away from the inner corner of the eye, as indicated in sketch two. The cream may be carried from the upper lip area over the cheeks, and finally up over the nose with the same rotary movement which was used around the eyes.

The final massage of the facial calls for stroking the tissue cream into the skin of the chin and throat with long—but not too firm or fast—upward strokes as illustrated by sketch No. 3. Then the application of a luke-warm towel, followed by several cold towels, will add a final soothing effect to the massage.

Paramount's beautiful young star Betty Grable, who was warned by Max Factor, the master mind of make-up, against the vigorous rubbing of the cream on her face. She has never forgotten that advice.

face can stand. Wring the towel almost dry. Then apply it to the lower portion of the face first and then gradually cover the whole face. Repeat this operation at least twice. This will open up all the pores of the skin to receive beneficially the Tissue cream of equally good standard. The tissue cream should be applied in a rather liberal quantity, remembering again that it should be patted briskly and not rubbed vigorously. First apply it to the centre of the forehead, after it should be carried out to each temple with smart pattering motion, as shown in the sketch N. 1.

Last but far from least comes the application of skin lotion or skin freshener, or, if the skin is oily, an astringent. The rules that have been outlined for the cream massage must also apply to the lotions and astringents. Most girls are in the habit of rubbing their faces vigorously with a towel during and after a wash. This must never be done. Not only they will make their skin freshener, or, if the skin is stretching their face muscles which will produce wrinkles, and premature old age will be stamped on their faces much before they reach their thirties.

Mainly about WOMEN

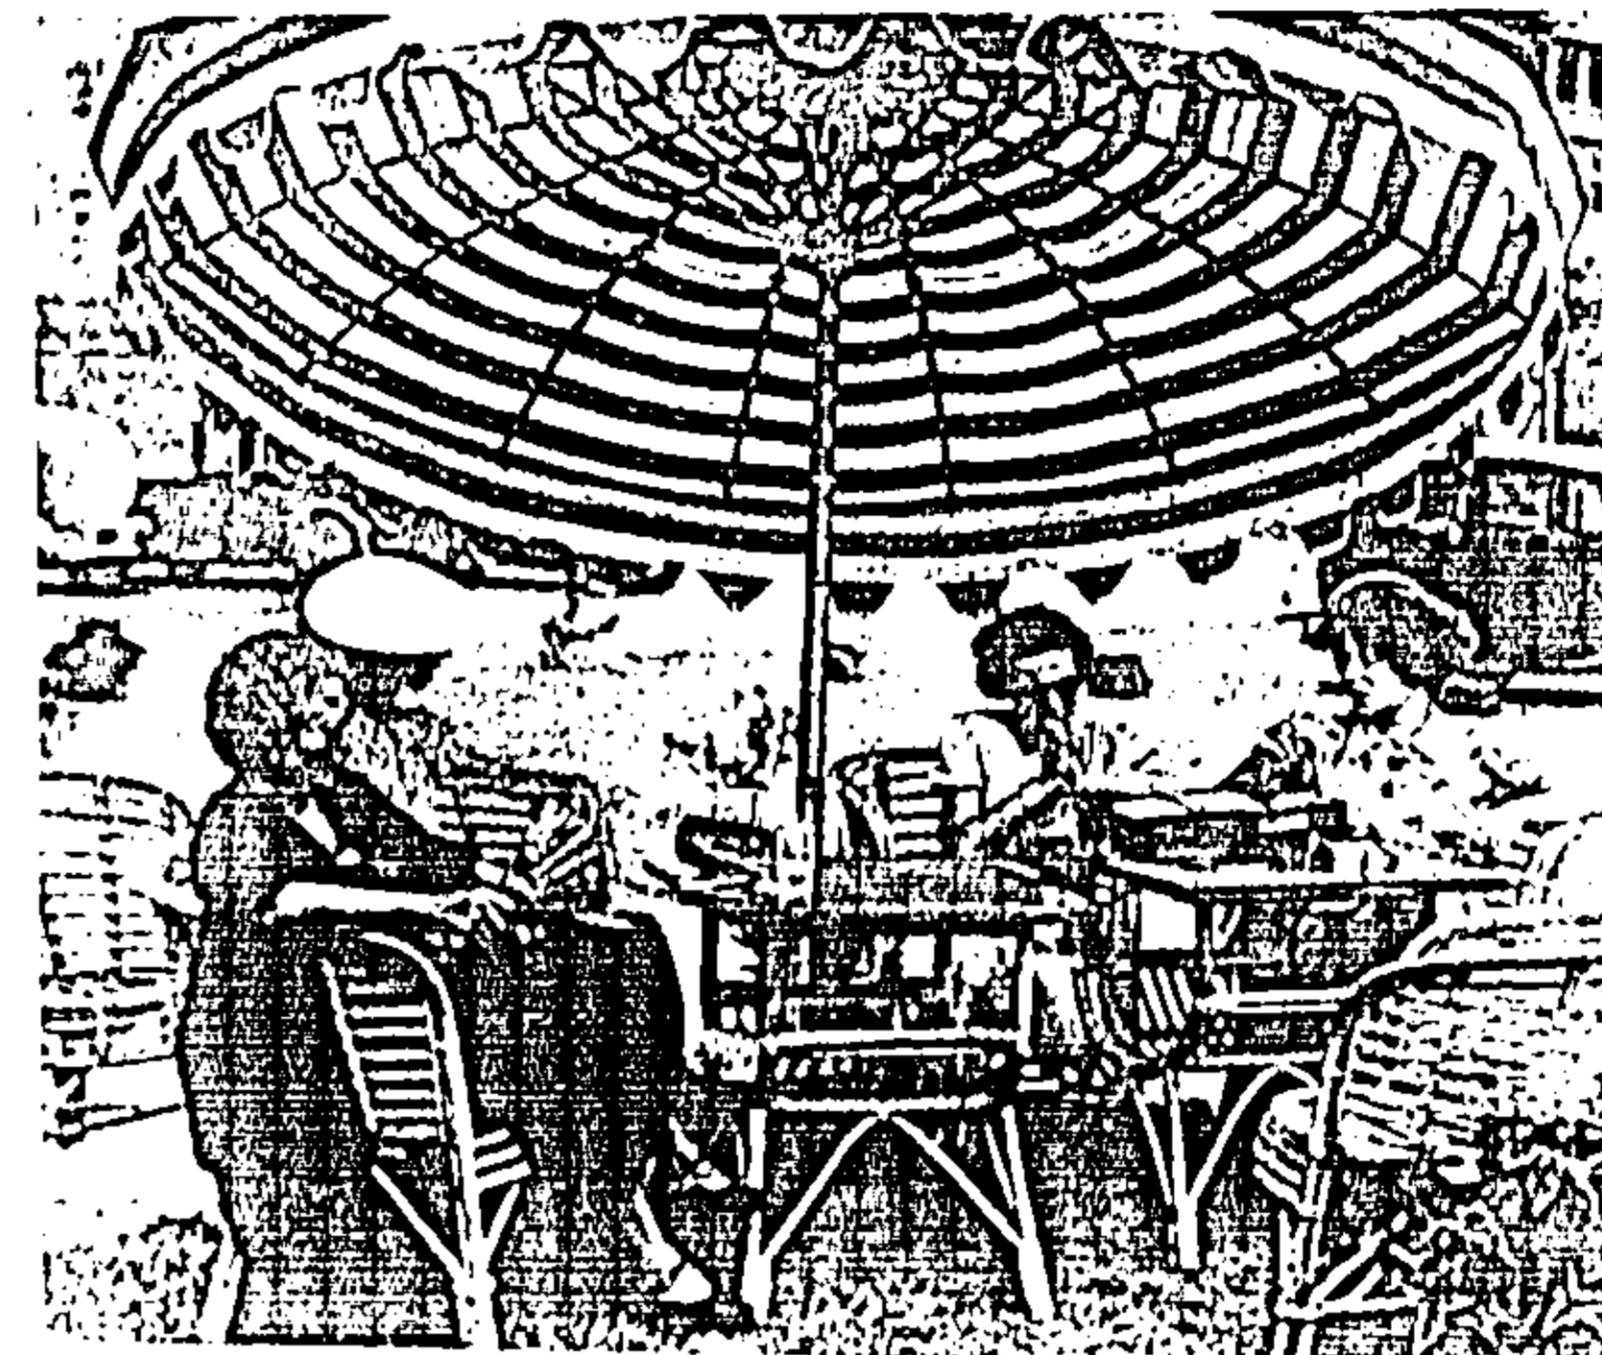

SCOTTISH shepherds driving their flocks in the north will probably meet a fair-haired, hatless, smiling woman from the south, who will talk to them in their own dialect and walk with them part of the way.

She will be Mrs. Neville Chamberlain, who, with the Prime Minister, is leaving London again for a holiday in the north of Scotland with a really rural setting.

No time-table, no eye on the clock—and no hats are among the conditions that make the perfect holiday for Mrs. Chamberlain.

Freedom from fixtures and the feeling that she can do just what she likes when she likes are some of the greatest holiday joys the wife of the Prime Minister knows. Perfect Picnic Luncheon

Other holiday pleasures that will give her a sense of freedom after busy, anxious months at No. 10, Downing-street are open-air activities such as walking down to the sea, sitting in the garden of the place where she will be staying, wearing tweeds and serviceable brogues, taking her lunch out and reading. The Prime Minister hopes to fish. Mrs. Chamberlain can handle a rod, but does not plan to do so.

Like other holiday-makers she has views on the food that tastes neatest out-of-doors. She dislikes sandwiches of all kinds. This is her menu for the perfect open-air picnic luncheon: Hardboiled eggs, long lettuce leaves, biscuits, butter, cheese, brown scones with strawberry jam, coffee, very hot out of a vacuum container.

Queen's Christening Gift

A silver porringer of simple modern design is the gift of the Queen to her newest godson the Hon. George Andrew Beaumont, Lord and Lady Allendale's fifth son, who was christened at Christ Church, Down-street.

The charming little porringer is made with two small handles and is inscribed with the baby's names.

Lady Halifax stood proxy for the Queen, and Lord Allendale for the baby's Cabinet Minister godfather, Lord Stanley. Another godfather, Lt. Commander Bust, gave the baby his first cigarette box.

Blue For A Boy

The family christening role of old lace over satin, elaborately made in the manner of baby clothes of former generations, was brought out for this morning ceremony.

Lady Allendale's only daughter, the Hon. Ela Beaumont, led the group of little girls who attended the church wearing gay, flower-wreathed hats and brightly coloured coats, mostly in shades of pink and blue.

Although the baby is her sixth child, Lady Allendale had forgotten that it is "blue for a boy." She recalled it too late, after having her rooms at No. 144, Piccadilly decorated with pink carnations. These were mixed with white lilies and gypsophila.

The florist, however, had introduced blue into the decorations at the church; the font was graced with delphiniums, white carnations and gypsophila.

For The Shooting

Lady Halifax, Lady Ilchester, Lady Seely, the baby's grandmother, Mrs. Seely, Mr. and Mrs.

Victor Seely, and Mr. Seely's little daughter Victoria, the Hon. Mrs. Gilpin and her children, Patricia and Beatrice, were among those who went on to the fork luncheon christening party at Lady Allendale's Piccadilly House.

Lord and Lady Allendale and their children are going north to their shooting box in Northumberland.

There is likely to be a succession of youthful guests in September at Bretton Park, where the rest of the family holiday will be spent.

Bride's Jasmine Earrings

Earrings have been much worn during the past season. Novel, however, are the earrings made of real jasmine flowers, which Miss Diana Howard wore at her wedding to Mr. Richard Marcus Beresford.

These earrings hang nearly to her shoulders, and are revealed when the tulle bridal veil is gathered back from the face, beneath its diadem of miniature Alba lilies.

Pearl earrings were the bride-groom's souvenir gifts to the six bridesmaids.

Queen Mary And Newnham

Sixty-four years of progress in providing University education for women were marked on Aug. 12, when Queen Mary opened the first block of the Newnham College Extension Scheme at Cambridge.

For 25 years there have been no additions to the College, although the numbers of students and Fellows to be accommodated continue to increase.

The present building scheme, of which Queen Mary opened a portion only, is an extensive one, and it is estimated that £100,000 is required for its completion.

Those who are familiar with the stately red brick buildings and spacious grounds which comprise Newnham College to-day find it hard to realize that 64 years ago five students only formed the nucleus of the College. These were housed under the charge of Miss A. J. Clough in a two-storyed villa in Regent-street, Cambridge.

President Rival?
Sally Strand In Running
For Honour

At the annual convention of the F.S.P.P.F.A. (Film Stars, Past, Present, and Future Association), held last night at the Hollywood Basin, it was unanimously decided to nominate Sally Strand for the presidential position. Sally is only four years old, but it was felt that despite her tender years she would make a better job of governing than the present party.

When questioned concerning her party policy, Sally said, "I like Ice Cream. I'd give lots of Ice Cream free to everyone, — even Gran'ma." (Cheers from assembled crowd).

"What kind of Ice Cream would you give them, Sally?"

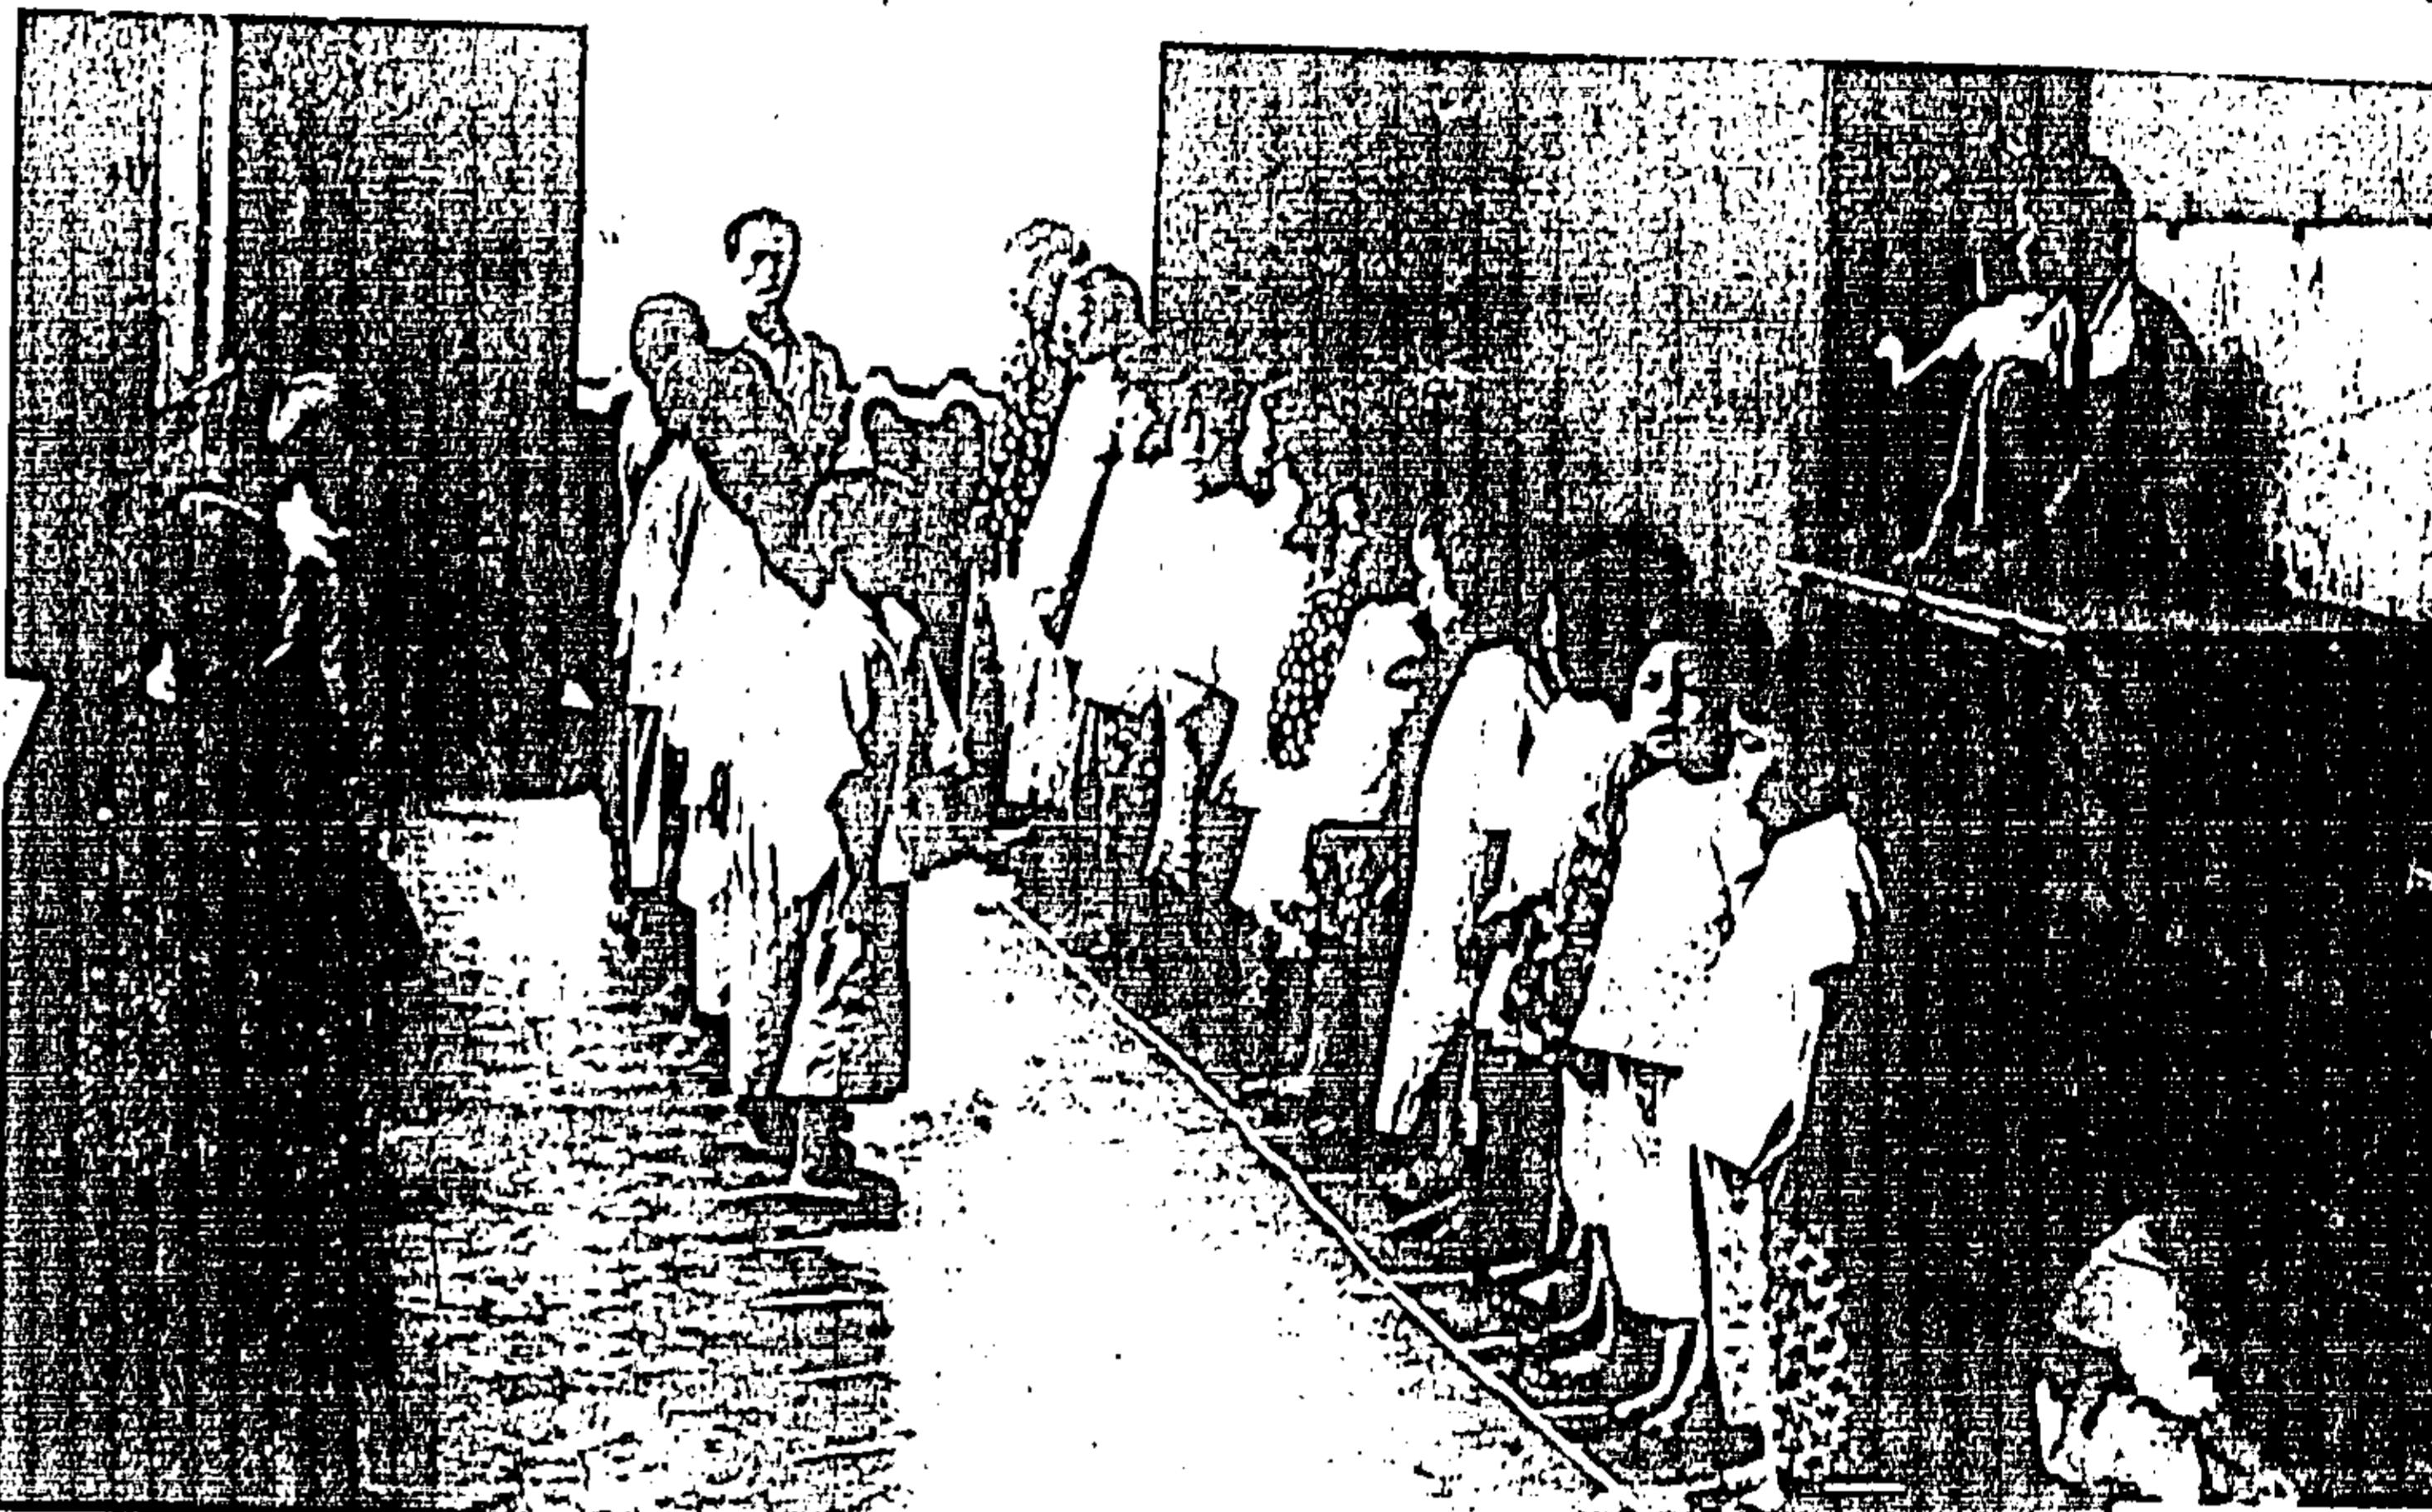

"Why, Ice Cream made by the Dairy Farm, Hong Kong, of course."

(Frantic cheers from assembled crowd, and cries of 'For She's a Jolly Good Fellow').

It is felt that Sally's policy will go far towards gaining her success at the poll.
